By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Egyptian President Anwar Sadat insisted today that Israeli forces in Egypt must pull back as a first step toward Middle East peace. Premier Golda Meir left Israel for Washington and talks with President Nixon on prospects for negotiations.

Sadat said in a news conference that there will be no exchange of war prisoners until the Israelis move back to the Oct. 22 cease-fire line.

He gave an emphatic "no" to the idea of direct peace negotiations with Israel. But he said once disengagement starts, an international peace conference on the Middle East could begin under U.N. auspices.

Mrs. Meir was expected to combine thanks for U.S. aid in the Middle East conflict with complaints about reported U.S. pressure on Israel to make concessions to the Arabs.

On departure for Washington, Mrs. Meir said, "There are naturally problems that have to be discussed." But she added, "I am leaving with the true feeling that they will be discussed in friendship."

The Israelis permitted more supplies for the Egyptian 3rd Army to pass through their lines. A command spokesman in Tel Aviv said, "Some technical difficulties held up the relief convoy this morning, but 23 trucks are now unloading."

The food, water and medical supplies are for the 20,000-man Egyptian army that Israel says is cut off in the Sinai Desert east of the Suez canal by Israeli forces on the west bank.

The Egyptians claim that Israeli forces took up new positions on the west bank between the Oct. 22 cease-fire and the second truce Oct. 24. Sadat's demand that Israel pull back to the Oct. 22 positions would allow Egypt to link up with its 3rd Army again.

In his news conference Sadat, who wore a military uniform, said his forces could easily defeat Israeli units on the west bank of the canal and pressure was building up on him to do so.

"Militarily this is easy," he said. "The east bank forces of the Egyptian 3rd Army are well entrenched while the rest and larger part of this army is now behind the Israeli forces on the west bank."

But he said he was holding back to avoid more war and bloodshed.

Sadat's view of an endangered Israeli force conflicted with Tel Aviv's claim that it has the Egyptian 3rd Army surrounded and at its mercy on the east bank of the canal.

Sadat also told a news conference in Cairo that Israel must pull back the troops on the west side of the canal to the lines they held at the time of the first cease-fire on Oct. 22 before he will exchange prisoners of war.

Israel had reported Tuesday that an exchange of wounded POWs was imminent.

Sadat said his officers were pressing him to let them wipe out the Israeli forces on the west bank of the canal but he was holding back to give President Nixon time to prevail on the Israelis to withdraw.

He indicated Nixon and Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger this week told acting foreign minister, Ismail Fahmy they believe the Israelis should withdraw.

Fahmy was to be followed in Washington by Israeli Premier Golda Meir, who left Tel Aviv this morning for the United States.

Washington sources said Kissinger plans to pursue his quest for peace in the Middle East by visiting Cairo and other Mideast capitals next week.

Defense Minister Moshe Dayan told the Israeli parliament that Egypt has provided a list of 82 POWs — 45 of them injured — and promised a list of all its POWs within three days.

He said there would be an immediate exchange of wounded prisoners and Israel would take the first step by freeing 75 wounded Egyptians.

"We asked them for a full prisoner exchange but we have no promise on this," Dayan said. "But once the wounded are back and once the visits of the International Red Cross are taking place and the lists have been exchanged, I believe the full exchange would follow."

However, Egypt's official Middle East News Agency said the Egyptian high command had ordered a prisoner exchange only after the Israelis "return to the lines of Oct. 22, in accordance of the Security Council resolution."

It was on Oct. 23, before the second Security Council cease-fire resolution, that Israeli forces on the west bank of the Suez Canal advanced past the south end of the canal and completed the encirclement of the Egyptian 3rd Army.

Israel estimates Egypt is holding about 350 Israelis prisoner and that Syria captured about 100.

Bulletin

The Sedalia School Board Wednesday voted to immediately pay $141,935.30 to 18 firms involved in the construction of the junior high school building.

This action, School Superintendent Dr. Allan Henningsen said, will pave the way for payment of $15,352.25 to 11 subcontracting firms by the building's general contractor, the Don "L" Bron Construction Co.

The board voted to take this arrangement, which had already been approved at a meeting earlier in the month, following the receipt of a letter from Bron's attorney, Joseph Birmingham Jr., Kansas City.

weather

Clear to partly cloudy and cool tonight; low tonight in 30s; winds diminishing; partly sunny on Thursday; high Thursday in 50s. The temperature Wednesday was 47 at 7 a.m. and 55 at noon. Low Tuesday night was 32.

Lake of the Ozarks stage: 58.6; 1.4 feet below full reservoir. Sunset today will be at 5:14 p.m.; Sunrise Thursday at 6:40 a.m.

Saxbe is 'sure' of Justice nomination

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. William Saxbe emerged from a meeting with President Nixon today and said he is "relatively sure" he will be named U.S. attorney general.

"I don't want to be presumptuous and say I've got it in the bag," Saxbe said, citing administrative details he said were yet to be worked out.

Talking with reporters on the White House driveway after a 90-minute session with Nixon, Saxbe spoke as if he had received assurances that he would be nominated to succeed Elliot Richardson who resigned as attorney general Oct. 20 after Nixon ordered him to fire special Watergate prosecutor Archibald Cox.

"It's a challenge I just can't turn down," the Ohio Republican said of the top Justice Department job.

Saxbe said it was obvious the new special Watergate prosecutor would be selected "long before I would be confirmed." He sided with Nixon's view that the executive branch, rather than the courts should appoint Cox's successor, and said he was satisfied that the new special prosecutor would receive any necessary information from White House tapes and documents.

Saxbe said he and Nixon talked frankly about his assets and liabilities for the job. In response to a question, Saxbe said that Nixon had raised some of his past criticism of the President. Saxbe said he responded that Nixon "would have to take me warts and all," but that his past criticism "certainly doesn't reduce my ability to work and cooperate with the President."

Saxbe said his lengthy conversation with the President satisfied him that Nixon has acted honorably throughout the Watergate controversy.

Asked whether Nixon had offered him the job as attorney general, Saxbe responded, "That was implied when I walked in." He said the next move is up to Nixon, but added, "I'm satisfied in my mind I could do the job."

Key senators had said Tuesday that Nixon planned to nominate Saxbe but Saxbe said then he had not been offered the job.

Saxbe, 57, a first-term senator who recently announced he would not run for reelection next year, is a former attorney general of his state.

Committee calls for reopening of probe

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two members of the Senate Judiciary Committee called today for a reopening of its inquiry into the ITT affair because of the disclosure that President Nixon personally intervened in the case.

Senate Democratic Whip Robert Byrd, a ranking member of the committee, said there is now evidence that perjury was committed during the panel's original ITT investigation.

Sen. Birch Bayh, D-Ind., also make public a letter to acting Atty. Gen. Robert Bork urging that the Justice Department's investigation of possible perjury be expedited.

Bayh noted that the Justice Department had been requested 16 months ago by the committee to review the transcript of confirmation hearings of former Atty. Gen. Richard Kleindienst, which involved the ITT settlement, for possible perjury.

The letter asked Bork to advise the committee "at the earliest possible date of the status of the investigation and let us know when we may expect a final report."

Bayh said the disclosure Tuesday of Nixon's intervention in the case had raised again the question of possible perjury because of Kleindienst's testimony that "I was not interfered with by anybody at the White House. I was not importuned; I was not pressured; I was not directed."

Byrd said he believed former special Watergate prosecutor Archibald Cox had been indiscreet and had shown poor judgment in disclosing a confidential conversation about the ITT affair.

But Byrd said, "That doesn't change the substance of the information. The issue really boils down to this: Did the government lie about the ITT?"

Byrd, interviewed on the NBC-TV "Today" show, said: "I think the committee ought to reopen the inquiry into the ITT case."

White House officials, breaking their silence in an effort to calm the rekindled ITT controversy, said Tuesday that it supplied Cox with White House files on the antitrust settlement before he was fired as special Watergate prosecutor.

Prisoner escapes from work detail

A 40-year-old state prisoner escaped from his work detail at the Missouri State Fairgrounds about 2 a.m. Wednesday by stealing a Fairgrounds pickup truck, Cloval Vestal, superintendent of the Fordland Honor Camp, said Wednesday.

The man was identified as Eugene Earl Stroder, St. Louis, who began serving a six-year sentence on Jan. 24 this year on a charge of stealing more than $50 by deceit.

Vestal said Stroder escaped from the Youth Building, where 23 prisoners and two correctional officers were sleeping. The prisoners are doing maintenance work at the Fairgrounds.

Ron Jones, secretary of the Fair, said the keys to the truck were stolen shortly after the Fair, or "around the first of September." The truck was kept locked up after that, it was reported.

Stroder arrived at the Fairgrounds for duty in June and this was the last week of the working season here for the men before they were due to return to Fordland. One source speculated that, since the prisoners normally are not told when they are to return to camp, word might have leaked out to them, precipitating Stroder's escape.

According to Jones, Stroder evidently had the keys since September and may not have made a decision on what to do with them until Wednesday morning.

Stroder was described as a white male, six-foot-tall, about 162 pounds, and having brown eyes and brown hair. Vestal said the pickup truck was a gold-colored International.

Vestal said Stroder was transferred to the Fordland Honor Camp, which is about 30 miles south of Springfield, on July 21. He previously had been at the state penitentiary in Jefferson City, he said. Prisoners at the honor camp have been working at the Fairgrounds for the past four years.

Vestal said correctional officers have "no idea" where Stroder may be headed. Area law enforcement agencies were notified of the escape early Wednesday morning.

Underpass demolished

The underpass leading to the racetrack on the Missouri State Fairgrounds is now being demolished, to be replaced by a taller and wider one in the near future. Maran Construction Co., Columbia, has been contracted to do the job, which is expected to take about 10 weeks. In the top photo, Kenneth Steele uses a 3,000 pound "headache ball" to demolish the entrance to the tunnel while in the bottom photo, the roof of the underpass is caving in after a blow by the "headache ball." At the center of the picture, which was shot from inside during the cave-in, a workman can be seen watching the destructive work. The demolition phase of the work is expected to take about another week.

Sedalian is found innocent of assaulting police officer

By JACK SCHICHT
Democrat-Capital Staff Writer

A Pettis County Circuit Court jury deliberated one hour late Tuesday afternoon and returned an innocent verdict in the case of Richard Boggs.

Boggs, 19, 108 East Cooper, was charged with assaulting Sedalia Policeman John DeJarnette May 7 at a fight at the old police station.

Prosecuting Attorney Gary Fleming called three Sedalia policemen to the witness stand in the morning and afternoon sessions of the trial. Five persons, including the defendant, were summoned to the stand by James Buckley, Boggs' attorney.

DeJarnette was the first to testify at the morning session. He said that Boggs and other members of his family came into the police station between 7:30 and 8 p.m. on May 7.

Boggs said earlier that night he took Donald Boggs, 10, brother of the defendant, into custody in the 100 block of East Cooper, a short distance away from the youth's home.

He said the youth was taken into custody after a Bonner Springs, Kan., policeman identified the younger Boggs as one of the two youths who had earlier thrown a rock into the windshield of his car.

DeJarnette said he was seated at a desk at the police station, questioning the youth, when Richard Boggs jumped him from behind and started choking him. DeJarnette said other policemen eventually freed him from Boggs.

Richard Boggs testified that he, his mother and two of his brothers went to the police station to ask police why Donald Boggs had been arrested.

Boggs added that a fight at the police station developed after DeJarnette shoved him and his brother, Jeff, after he had asked why his brother, Donald, was being "treated like a criminal."

Boggs said that during the fight he attempted to get DeJarnette off his brother, Jeff, but never choked the policeman. The charge alleged that Boggs had assaulted a police officer by choking.

Donald Boggs also testified that DeJarnette hit Richard Boggs in the chest after he had inquired about the apprehension.

Also testifying at the trial were Sedalia Police Sergeants J. V. Phelps and Frank Lueck.

Phelps said he saw Boggs assault DeJarnette after "several subjects stormed in" the police station "in a disorderly manner." Lueck said he saw a person "grab" DeJarnette, but could not identify the person.

Three persons were put on the witness stand by Buckley as character references for the defendant. They were Lester Boggs, Richard's father; Robert Cain, 1112 South Warren; and James E. Dick, 115 South Gentry.

In his closing arguments, Buckley stressed the circumstances which led to the fight at the police station. He said the

Halloween warnings are issued

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Halloween can spell danger as well as delight for young trick-or-treaters. Authorities remind parents that a dose of prudence will help protect their children from mishap.

Police in the metropolitan Washington, D.C., area and elsewhere are asking parents to inspect all unwrapped Halloween candy their youngsters bring home from tonight's rounds. Officers said there had been incidents last Halloween of razor blades in apples and drugs hidden in malted milk balls.

The American Medical Association advises parents to "make your small spooks' costumes of bright colors. You might even sew on some strips of reflective tape. In the excitement of the occasion they might dart into the street."

Costumes, masks, beards and wigs should all be made of fire resistant material, cautions the U.S. Consumer Product Safety Commission in Washington. The agency also advises parents to accompany younger children out trick-or-treating.

In Highland, Ind., Halloween this year is again time for fund-raising along with fun.

High-school age members of the Lake County Youth for Christ organization for a sixth year are running a haunted house attraction which has already drawn some 6,000 visitors since opening last week.

The youths begin the annual project by finding a vacant house whose owner would like it torn down at no charge. When the haunted house closes, the youngsters raze the building and use the admission proceeds to sponsor high school activities.

Young volunteers garbed in ghoulish style have been staffing a haunted house sponsored by the Milwaukee March of Dimes to raise money for the organization. Top event is the choosing of some lucky young lady for a "date with Dracula," complete with sanguinary repast.

For 10-year-old Stephen Gordon in Southfield, Mich., Halloween is time to go candy-gathering together with the neighborhood kids. But Steve can't eat the sweets. He's among an estimate one million juvenile diabetics in the United States. Steve since infancy has had to take more than 3,000 insulin injections because he can't metabolize sugar normally. Without the insulin, his blood sugar level would rise dangerously high.

"One of the toughest times in a diabetic kid's life is Halloween," says Steve's mother, Marsha.

"He must collect more candy than any other kid on the block. And he just can't eat it. It's like eating a little poison."

"Oh, we pick out some of it, potato chips or peanuts — things like that," she says. "But the rest goes to Children's Hospital."

Still, that isn't cramping Steve's sense of Halloween initiative.

"I'll dress as a bum," he says. "You just go to a house and they give you the candy. Then you spot the houses that give you the good candy, put on a mask, and go back for more."

Insurance for savings vital

By PETER WEAVER

Q — Is it as safe to deposit funds in a savings and loan as it is in a bank? — C.P.G., Palo Alto, Calif.

A — It depends on whether the savings and loan and bank are insured by a federal or state regulatory agency. If the savings and loan and bank are both insured by a federal agency, it means your deposits are protected up to $20,000. You can have a combination of various kinds of accounts (savings, checking, trust) which will give protection for even greater amounts.

Some savings and loan associations and some banks are regulated by state governments. These institutions are not insured by the federal government against loss of a depositor's funds. Some are insured by their state treasury and afford some protection, although usually not as much as that provided by the federal government.

Best bet is to ask your savings institution how it is regulated and how much protection is afforded each type of deposit. In case of a failure, a federally insured institution will reimburse depositors in a matter of days.

Q — You didn't give much hope to the reader who was unable to collect on a mortgage insurance policy after her husband died. There are substantial precedents binding an insurance company even though an illness had not been stated in the application.

I have found that the law provides certain remedies to people, which are not apparent from reading the policy itself and which are diametrically opposed to the position taken by the insurance companies. The advice of an attorney should be sought on any contested insurance claim. — S.W.M., attorney at law, Los Angeles, Calif.

A — Thanks for the tip.

Q — When we built our home about six years ago, we borrowed $5,000 on our insurance policies at 5 per cent interest. Should we pay off the loan on the policy or put our money into a savings account where we can get at least 6 per cent? — H.C., Phoenix, Ariz.

A — Put your money into a savings account. As you noted, you'll be getting higher interest than the loan is costing. If you ever find savings rates coming down below 5 per cent, you may want to pay off the insurance loan. Insurance companies urge customers to pay off their loans by pointing out that, if you die, your heirs will have the amount of the loan deducted from the policy's death benefits. Even so, the money in your home is a good investment, and there's no real reason to pay the loan off unless, of course, interest rates fall below 5 per cent and you can get a cheaper loan somewhere else.

Q — In one of your columns you said that retired persons who have earnings less than $2,800 a year don't have to pay income tax. If I earn $2,800 and have interest coming in from a small savings account, does that mean I have to pay tax on the small amount of interest or the interest plus the $2,800 other earnings? — K.R., Omaha, Neb.

A — Taxpayers 65 or older get special benefits. If you make more than $2,800 you have to file a tax return. But you get special exemptions which should make your tax a matter of a few dollars. Anyone who makes less than $10,000 can use the short income tax form and can find out what tax they owe through the tax tables that come with the form.

The fall season up until the ground freezes is a good time to transplant trees from the woods to your lawn. Most broadleaf species are dormant now, but some of them retain enough leaves to help identify the species.

Moving trees now has several advantages. There is less danger of root system drying out during the moving process or after trees are in their new locations. The soil works better at this time of year. And, by time the growing season starts, soil around newly planted trees will be settled and in firm contact with roots.

Species of trees which are best for your yard depend upon your preference, size of yard and kind of site which you have to work with.

Pin Oak is one of the most popular species. It grows rapidly and develops a rather narrow crown which is suitable for small yards. Northern red oak is an excellent species which grows slower and develops a large crown at maturity.

The hard maples are very good, but are slow growing. Green and white ash are fine shade tree species, and both are relatively free of insects and diseases. Sycamore develops into a beautiful large tree but the heavy leaf litter and seed balls are objectionable to many home owners.

Species such as Chinese elm, soft maple and silver poplar may be planted as temporary shade trees, but they are neither long-lived nor very desirable.

Select trees which are growing in the open if possible. Otherwise, full exposure to the sun and wind may kill trees the first year.

Do not try to move trees which are too large. Four or five foot trees which are carefully moved and well planted will usually live and grow better than ten or fifteen foot trees which cannot be handled properly.

The important part of the root system is located under the outer ends of the limbs. Therefore, the diameter of the ball of earth should be approximately the same as the diameter of the crown.

If your yard is clay or clay fill, it is best to dig the planting hole larger and deeper than required for the tree and refill with good topsoil. Mix from 2 to 4 pounds of chemical fertilizer such as 8-24-8 with the soil which is used for refilling the hole.

If you move tall, slender trees it may be necessary to use guy cords or wires to prevent the trees from whipping in the wind before the roots become established.

Mulch the trees thoroughly with leaves or other material and keep this mulch in place during the first growing season.

Plan the location carefully. Remember that trees grow. They should not be under wires, too close to the walks, or less than 30 feet from the house if they are of a species which grows into a large tree at maturity.

Expensive rats

Do rats cost farmers money? You bet, and plenty of it. The cost of rats and mice on a farm would very easily amount to several hundred dollars a year.

The rat population is estimated to average 25 per farm in corn belt states. During one year, a single rat eats $4 worth of food, grain or feed — this amounts to $100 from just eating.

In addition, these rats contaminate 10 times as much — $1,000 worth — as they actually eat. One authority has said a single rat will shed about a million hairs void 10,000 droppings and a gallon of urine, and harbor as many as 10,000 lice.

In addition to their destruction of grain, rats damage buildings by gnawing and undermining, they are blood-thirsty killers of chicks, they cause fires, and spread disease.

There are so many different kinds of damage charged to rats that it is good business to stop feeding them.

Tractor tires

The lug angle on tractor tires does not significantly affect traction — whether the angle is less than 90 degrees as in conventional tires or up to 140 degrees.

Tire manufacturers have varied lug height, spacing, angle and shape, as well as tread width and curvature, in seeking improved performance from their tractor tires. While a lot of lug angle has been thought to produce superior traction, this belief was not substantiated in research at the National Tillage Machinery Laboratory, Auburn, Ala.

Little difference in performance with the eight lug angles tested was found. Lug angles below 90 degrees are probably no more effective than angles above 90 degrees. Lug angle may affect rate of tread wear or the ride of tires, especially on hard surfaces.

Prussic acid

The threat of prussic acid poisoning should not prevent cattle and sheep producers from getting the full feeding potential from grain sorghum stubble, sudan grass and sorghum-sudan crosses.

Fall is a season when conditions occur that could result in prussic acid poisoning. Prussic acid is most apt to form when plants have been stunted by frost, drought, freezing or near freezing temperatures. Be especially cautious of plants that are wilted following frost. They may be grazed again after normal growth resumes. They may also be used after the stubble is dead and thoroughly cured. Forages are likely to be most dangerous when plants are less than 15 to 18 inches high.

Neither sudangrass nor sorghum-sudan is dangerous when preserved as hay or silage after the ensiling process is complete. Some farmers are hesitant about turning animals into grain sorghum stubble after heads have been harvested. Such stubble is absolutely safe when plants are dead and thoroughly cured. For those who want to pasture such fields while some of the foliage is still green, the forage can be tested for prussic acid content. Most veterinarians are equipped to make such tests. Second growth milo is usually very high in prussic acid.

If cattle or sheep — the most susceptible farm animals — become poisoned from prussic acid, remove them from the area being pastured and call a veterinarian immediately. Treatment must often be given quickly to avoid death.

Fertilize now

Some farmers are now applying fertilizer for 1974 feed grains.

Anhydrous ammonia can be safely knifed in now and a pound of nitrogen will cost you five cents. The cost of a pound of N from ammonium nitrate is costing 12 cents.

All fertilizer will be scarce and much higher in cost if you wait until spring.

If the weather permits get your 1974 fertilizer on your farm now.

Selection of Watergate prosecutor is pondered

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress is mulling over an expanding web of legislative ideas on how a special Watergate prosecutor should be selected.

One of the newest was proposed Tuesday by Sen. Howard H. Baker Jr., R-Tenn., who believes two co-equal prosecutors — a Republican and Democrat — should be appointed by President Nixon. The Senate must approve the dual appointment under Baker's bill.

The Democratic prosecutor would be appointed from a list of names submitted by the House speaker and the president pro tempore of the Senate after consultation with the majority leaders of the House and Senate.

But Baker, vice chairman of the Senate Watergate committee, said he is not discounting other congressional bills which would also establish the post of special prosecutor.

Sen. Robert Taft Jr., R-Ohio, plans to present to the Senate Judiciary Committee on Thursday a proposal to authorize the attorney general to hire and fire a special prosecutor.

If the prosecutor were fired, Taft's bill would require the attorney general to come before Congress to explain why.

The Ohioan's proposal comes amid reports that President Nixon will nominate Sen. William B. Saxbe, R-Ohio, to be attorney general. House Judiciary member Bill Cohen, R-Maine, said the attorney general should select a prosecutor subject to Senate confirmation.

Sen. John Dellenback, R-Ore., said the prosecutor should be "kept out from under the thumb of the executive branch." His bill, similar to one introduced by Sen. Birch Bayh, D-Ind., and backed by 55 senators, would empower U.S. District Court Judge John J. Sirica to choose a prosecutor who could not be fired by the President.

Sen. James Buckley, Con.-R-

N.Y., said he plans legislation for a three-judge panel to supervise the special prosecutor.

Buckley said the panel would be composed of three chief judges of the court of appeals picked by the chief justice of the Supreme Court.

Parole roadblock removed for Fugate

By ODELL HANSON
Associated Press Writer

LINCOLN, Neb. (AP) — A roadblock to parole has been removed for Caril Ann Fugate, but the ex-sweetheart of mass killer Charles Starkweather will have to wait another three years before possible release from prison.

The state Pardon Board Tuesday commuted her life sentence for murder to 30 to 50 years. At the earliest under Nebraska law, she could be considered for parole in May of 1976. Commutation to 25 years would have made her eligible for immediate parole consideration by the separate parole board. Without commutation, parole cannot be granted.

Miss Fugate, a 14-year-old eighth grader at the time, accompanied Starkweather, 19, on a three-day killing rampage in 1958 during which nine persons in the Lincoln area were killed, and a 10th was shot to death near Douglas, Wyo., moments before the pair were captured. Starkweather was executed in 1958.

Convicted of murder for aiding and abetting Starkweather in one of the killings, Miss Fugate has spent half of her 30 years of life at the York, Neb., women's reformatory.

She received word of the pardon board action without comment. Jacqueline Crawford, reformatory superintendent, pictured her as grateful for the commutation, but disappointed that release cannot come earlier.

Gov. J. James Exon and Secretary of State Allen Beermann voted to commute her term.

Atty. Gen. Clarence A. H. Meyer, third board member, dissented.

Miss Fugate was not called before the pardon board. Relatives of the victims appeared to oppose clemency.

Entered in the record was a transcript of an Oct. 5 interview of Miss Fugate by parole board members in which she again protested her innocence.

"If I would have to stay in this institution for the rest of my life, I would stand upon these grounds I am not guilty," she declared.

She described herself as a "reborn Christian" who "hated God" when first imprisoned, but who has since made her peace.

WHITEMAN AFB — Robert Hood, president of the Missouri Credit Union League, was the featured speaker Thursday of the West Central Chapter of Credit Unions, discussing the future of credit unions in relation to a bill now before the Legislature.

Another highlight of the meeting was that Mrs. Marguerite Scott, a member of the Founder's Club who has been active in the base credit union for 19 years, was presented a plaque and a citation for her services. The presentations were made by Sam G. Tuck, president of the credit union here, and Helen M. Wesley, president of the West Central Chapter.

TAIPEI (AP) — President Chiang Kai-shek, the last of World War II's Big Five, observed his 86th birthday in seclusion today. But Taiwan celebrated with parties, fireworks and a million birthday cards dropped by the air force.

Chiang has not appeared in public since July 1972 and customarily avoids public appearances on his birthday, preferring to celebrate quietly with his family and a few friends.

Informed sources said he remains in reasonably good health and is alert.

In a birthday greeting brought from Washington by Anna Chennault, the Chinese-born widow of Lt. Gen. Claire Chennault, whose Flying Tigers flew for Chiang in World War II, President Nixon told Chiang, "We have all benefited from the wisdom that your long and rich experience has given us."

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — The wife of Rep. William H. Hudnut III of Indiana has filed suit to end their 13-year marriage.

Anne Hudnut, who has three children by her marriage to Hudnut and two by a previous marriage which also ended in divorce, filed the suit Tuesday. She said there had been an irretrievable breakdown of the marriage.

Hudnut, a Republican and an ordained Presbyterian minister, resigned as pastor of the Second Presbyterian Church here after his election to Congress last year.

On Oct. 14 he conducted worship services at the White House at the invitation of President Nixon.

LONDON (AP) — Actress Ingrid Bergman says thieves got away with $24,000 in cash, furs and jewels in a raid on her London apartment.

"The place looked like it had been hit by a hurricane," the Swedish star said Tuesday. "Every door and cupboard had been torn open and everything of value was gone."

Says governor's mansion in Delaware is haunted

DOVER, Del. (AP) — Political fates have swept three families in and out of the Governor's House on King's Highway, but the mansion's most notorious occupants just won't go away.

There are some who claim, especially around Halloween, that a Colonial gentleman with a fondness for good wine has graced the halls of the old home for perhaps a century.

There are others who have collected lesser known tales of a small girl who appears at early morning beside a garden pool... and the strange shrieking from a gnarled Tulip Poplar which for years has been known as the Hanging Tree.

Jeanne Tribbitt, Delaware's First Lady, chuckles at the thought.

"I certainly haven't seen any ghosts around here and I've been in the attic and everywhere," she said.

Gov. Sherman W. Tribbitt, Mrs. Tribbitt and their 15-year-old son, Sherman "Tip" Tribbitt Jr., moved into the middle period Georgian house near downtown Dover last January.

Before them the Russell W. Petersons had occupied the home for four years. The late Gov. Charles L. Terry was the first head of state to occupy the three-story mansion after the General Assembly decided in 1966 to purchase a permanent residence for erstwhile commuting governors.

The ghost tales, which had been attached for years to the 183-year-old Woodburn Mansion, came along in the deal whether anyone wanted them or not.

For the most part the origin and even the number of tales attached to Woodburn Mansion are as nebulous as the spooks themselves.

The late Terry was fond of recounting the woes of some previous owner who would fill a wine decanter each evening, only to discover it empty by morning.

The culprit, spotted one evening by a servant, was said to be a ghost dressed in the knee britches and ruffled shirt of a Colonial gentleman.

As the story has been told to Mrs. Tribbitt, the wine drinking ghost was supposed to appear on the second landing of the stairway to quench his thirst from a decanter placed on a table.

"I haven't tried leaving any wine out for the ghost. I knew my family would play a trick on me and it would be gone in the morning," she said.

Foreign press criticizes Nixon's firing of Cox

LONDON (AP) — President Nixon's firing of Watergate Special Prosecutor Archibald Cox drew a barrage of criticism in the foreign press ranging in intensity from a chiding "ill-conceived step" in the Japan Times to "democracy vomits" in the London Daily Mirror.

"President Nixon committed an ill-conceived step whose consequences he presumably had not foreseen," said the Japan Times. "It is not surprising, therefore, that an increasing number of U.S. legislators re-

The Asahi Shimbun said Nixon's "strongarm tactic is lamentable."

The London Daily Mirror, under a large headline reading "The Late Mr. Nixon," said "the only question that remains is will Richard Nixon display one single spark of decency and remove himself?"

The tabloid devoted the bulk of its first two pages to a fiery condemnation of Nixon. "Whatever the problems of getting rid of their president, no democracy can live on this surfeit of trickery, double-dealing and abrasive contempt for the rule of law he pretends in public speeches to uphold," it said.

The Times of London declared that "the concept of an extra-legal presidency has no place in the American Constitution."

Hong Kong's English-language South China Morning Post called Nixon's handling of the Watergate scandal a "shabby performance." But the newspaper found that the crisis "has strangely illumined the strength of the American scheme of government."

The suspicion that Nixon's domestic havoc was linked to the U.S. troop alert last week was cited by several British editors.

"Even here Watergate insinuates its all-corrupting doubt," said the Daily Mail of the U.S.-Soviet confrontation.

But the Daily Telegraph said the "public campaign against Nixon overreached itself" in the suggestion that the alert was staged.

The Times called the notion that the confrontation was concocted "a sad commentary on the situation in Washington and the standing of the administration."

Amount of Watergate broadcasts uncertain

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Change 325 on the Watergate show: The Public Broadcasting Service now says it may broadcast unabridged reruns of some of the coming Senate Watergate Committee hearings.

A PBS spokesman, who last week said there'd be no gavel-to-gavel reports of future hearings on Public TV, says that position has been changed by the stormy public reaction to President Nixon's firing of special Watergate prosecutor Archibald Cox.

"I think the whole public reaction simply indicates that if we can possibly do it, we are obligated to provide the coverage," he said.

He emphasized that in no way will all evening videotape reruns of future Watergate hearings be gavel-to-gavel. It will depend on the importance of each witness, he explained.

As an example, he said, PBS undoubtedly would rebroadcast the full testimony of Cox—fired Oct. 20 by Nixon—were Cox to be called on to appear before the Senate Watergate Committee.

"We haven't made any decisions yet," he said, referring to such coverage. "However, we're gearing up and... getting ready to go gavel-to-gavel if we feel it's warranted."

He added that PBS' plans for evening broadcasts of each day's hearings—and the length of such broadcasts—won't really be settled until PBS officials can study the scheduled appearances of future Watergate committee witnesses.

The PBS spokesman said the initial decision against gavel-to-gavel reruns of the coming hearings was made earlier this month after PBS polled its stations about future Watergate evening broadcasts.

At that time, he said, many public TV stations felt the hearings had "ground down to the point of dullness" and most of them said they no longer wanted the gavel-to-gavel repeats PBS has run in the past.

He said they also didn't want the occasional three-hour abridged versions of the hearings, but that they did want PBS to stay "flexible" in its coverage plans.

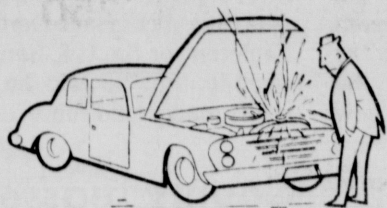

PBS had planned to ask the stations again late last week what Watergate hearing coverage they wanted rebroadcast at night. But it instead decided to stick with the stations' previous orders to use its own judgement, the spokesman said.

"Now, if they don't want to take it, they don't have to. But we feel that we're obligated, if the witnesses justify it, to provide that service."

Candidate for state auditor former official

ST. LOUIS (AP)—Courtney Goodman Jr., former Missouri liquor control supervisor, announced his candidacy for the Democratic nomination for state auditor today.

Goodman, 38, of St. Louis County, is the second Democrat to seek the nomination, and he blasted current Auditor John Ashcroft, calling him "a tool of the Republican administration in Jefferson City."

"He is a handmaid to the governor and does the governor's bidding because he was handpicked and appointed by the governor," Goodman said of Ashcroft. "He certainly cannot conduct independent audits of the very crowd that put him in office, something that I intend to do in an effort to keep the big boys honest in Jefferson City."

Goodman, a self-styled consumer advocate, said he had been warned that the utilities and other corporate interests around the state will oppose his candidacy.

But he said he cannot be scared off because the small businessmen, wage earners and farmers, "the great mass of ordinary folks," will be the ones to decide who is elected.

Goodman served as liquor control supervisor in 1972 and had previously been an assistant state attorney general and an assistant St. Louis County prosecutor.

Kissinger to Mideast on peace trip next week

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger will visit Cairo and other Mideast capitals next week as the United States tries to promote peace negotiations between Israel and its Arab foes, officials said.

The trip, to be formally announced today, is considered a prelude to talks between Israel and the Arab states late this year or in early 1974.

Kissinger will stop in Jidda and Amman to confer with Saudi Arabian and Jordanian leaders, and possibly also in Rabat, Morocco. Then, after a stop in Pakistan, he will fly to Peking on Nov. 10 for a visit postponed because of the Mideast war.

The White House had planned to announce Kissinger's trip following a meeting today between President Nixon and Ismail Fahmy, the acting Egyptian foreign minister.

The secret was spilled Tuesday night while the President, Kissinger and Soviet Ambassador Anatoly F. Dobrynin were meeting at Camp David, Md.

As the diplomatic pace quickened, Prime Minister Golda Meir of Israel was granted an appointment with Nixon at the White House on Thursday.

She asked to see the President amid indications that the United States was pressing Israel to yield Egyptian territory on the west bank of the Suez Canal seized between two U.N. cease-fire calls last week.

The fact that Kissinger's trip to Cairo had already been planned was taken as evidence that Washington has already decided on at least the broad outline of its diplomatic course.

Both the United States and the Soviet Union have pledged to use their "good offices" to expedite negotiations between Israel and her Arab neighbors. Of the two super powers, Washington clearly is playing the dominant role, while keeping Moscow informed principally through Dobrynin.

All attempts to foster negotiations since Israel was established 25 years ago have foundered even before an agenda could be prepared. The object of the current exploratory talks is to bring the two sides together under one roof, bargaining through a U.S. intermediary or directly across the table from each other. Geneva is a potential site.

Meanwhile, George Saddikni, the Syrian minister of information, vowed Tuesday that his country would not bargain with Israel.

Mideast problems "can only be solved through complete Israeli withdrawal from occupied Arab territories and the recognition of Palestinian rights," he said in Damascus.

Fahmy is understood to have told Kissinger, however, that Egypt, Syria and other Arab states are prepared to accept Israel's sovereignty as a hard fact of life.

Dirty tricks disrupted '72 Democratic campaign

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Edmund S. Muskie's presidential campaign manager testified today that Republican dirty tricks disrupted strategy, generated suspicion and animosity among Democratic presidential candidates and demoralized Muskie's staff workers during the 1972 campaign.

Berl I. Bernhard told the Senate Watergate committee that it is difficult to assess precisely the impact of the dirty tricks on the Maine senator's unsuccessful bid for the Democratic presidential nomination, but he added:

Bernhard said in a 44-page opening statement to the committee that some of the key vital documents in the campaign, including "the most important document we had put together," were stolen by infiltrators—apparently spies planted by President Nixon's re-election committee.

The most vital document was the major campaign advance and scheduling proposal for use during the fall and winter of 1971 and 1972 when the Democratic primary campaign was getting underway, Bernhard said.

"This material had been completed in August 1971 and because it was the most vital document we had put together, only two copies were made," Bernhard said. "Within a few days after its production, a copy disappeared.... It was later found on our campaign Xerox machine, the staples having been removed, apparently for copying."

Bernhard testified that the document reflected the entire Muskie political strategy and outlined where the senator was going, for what purpose and which states or conventions he might choose to de-emphasize. An opponent who obtained the document could focus disruption on key parts of the campaign and anticipate Muskie's moves, he said.

"It created suspicion as to whether we had a spy among our own staff, and a number of days were dissipated in trying to ascertain what happened," Bernhard said.

He cited other instances of what he called, "major theft," including the disappearance of raw polling data from the desk of the campaign polling expert and the theft of entire New Jersey and New Hampshire polls which he said "would certainly have been of value to the CRP (Committee for the Re-election of the President) if they were pursuing a program, as they appeared to have been, of embarrassing Sen. Muskie."

The effect of the poll theft was to discontinue general staff meetings to discuss polling results, Bernhard said.

He reviewed a number of incidents of political sabotage and disruption that previously had been blamed on Nixon campaign saboteur Donald H. Segretti.

Meanwhile, the Miami Herald reported that a Watergate committee member, Sen. Edward J. Gurney, R-Fla., and his top advisers established a secret fund in 1971 to handle $300,000 in unreported contributions and cash payoffs from contractors.

The newspaper quoted unnamed sources as saying former Gurney aide Larry E. Williams collected the cash in 1971-72 from Florida builders seeking influence with the Federal Housing Administration.

The Herald said the money was used for office and travel expenses and "other unknown purposes."

Gurney consistently has denied any link with alleged financial wrongdoing by Williams.

The newspaper said Gurney "has become a target of an expanding Justice Department investigation."

Clark MacGregor, who succeeded former Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell as director of the Committee for the Re-election of the President, is scheduled to follow Bernhard as the final witness in the committee's probe of political espionage and sabotage.

The panel is scheduled to open the third and final phase of hearings, a probe of campaign contributions, next week and voted Tuesday to seek immunity for three potential witnesses in that area.

Sen. Sam J. Ervin Jr., the committee chairman, said John Meier, Robert Lilly and Robert Haim would be granted immunity from prosecution based on the testimony they give.

Meier, a former Hughes Tool Co. executive, claims to have been a business associate of F. Donald Nixon, the President's brother.

He likely will be called as a witness when the committee hears testimony on a $100,000 cash contribution from billionaire Howard R. Hughes to Charles G. "Bebe" Rebozo, the President's close friend and neighbor in Key Biscayne, Fla.

Lilly is a lobbyist for the Associated Milk Producers Inc. (AMPI) and secretary of its political arm, Isham is former controller of AMPI.

They are expected to be called in connection with the committee's probe of more than $400,000 that was secretly channeled into the Nixon campaign by three dairymen's cooperatives, including AMPI, allegedly in exchange for administration favors for the dairy industry.

Meanwhile, Senate Democrats meeting in closed session Tuesday adopted an Ervin resolution urging bipartisan efforts to create a new special prosecutor's office free of both the executive and legislative branches of government. The vote was 30 to 9.

U.S. has ended its worldwide military alert

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States has ended the worldwide military alert called last week, the Pentagon said today.

Defense Department spokesman Jerry W. Friedheim said about 350,000 soldiers and sailors in Europe and within the Atlantic fleet returned to normal military duties at midnight Tuesday. They were the last of the U.S. military force remaining on alert status after President Nixon's order six days ago following Middle East tensions.

At the same time Friedheim said it appears that an alert of about 50,000 Soviet paratroopers in Russia and eastern Europe has ended also.

Over the weekend, all U.S.-based units, including the elite 82nd Airborne Division at Ft. Bragg, N.C., returned to their normal routines.

At a morning press briefing Friedheim said about 30,000 sailors of the U.S. 6th Fleet in the Mediterranean Sea would remain on a special standby alert, as they have been since Oct. 6. U.S. officials have been closely watching the increased size of the Soviet fleet of more than 90 ships in the Mediterranean since the recent Mideast War began.

Nearly all of the 2.2 million American force was called to some degree of combat readiness in the pre-dawn hours last Thursday.

County mails out tax statements

Pettis County residents will receive their property tax statements in the mail this week, County Collector Raymond Wilder said Wednesday.

Wilder said he mailed out about 16,000 individual billings Wednesday morning, a "slight increase" over last year. He added that the total taxation is "a little over $4 million," or "about a quarter million higher than last year."

Wilder said county residents have until Jan. 1, 1974, to pay their taxes without paying a penalty.

The county collector said his office is open at the second floor of the county courthouse from 9 a.m. to 4:45 p.m. Monday through Friday. Wilder also announced that his office will be open from 9 a.m. to noon on three Saturdays in December: Dec. 15, Dec. 22 and Dec. 29.

Offshore winds may hamper fire fighters

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Fire fighters working through the night cast a wary eye to the ocean today, worried that offshore winds would whip up a massive brush fire that already threatened hundreds of homes.

More than 700 persons were ordered evacuated from their homes in the face of flames that raced through brush-covered Topanga Canyon 20 miles west of downtown Los Angeles. Billowing clouds of smoke could be seen through most of the metropolitan area.

Los Angeles County Fire Department spokesman Bill Mullen said chances for containing the 1,650-acre blaze would be improved if offshore winds did not pick up. However, wind gusting to about 20 miles an hour began to kick up along the coast this morning.

A favorable wind could enable fire fighters to contain the blaze by late afternoon, Mullen said. He added that it could take at least two days to control the blaze following containment.

Officials said they were hopeful the fire could be kept away from homes in the area. The fire was moving further west away from the canyon community of Fernwood, one of the areas seriously threatened earlier.

The three-pronged fire appeared strongest on its western front, heading toward the seaside community of Malibu. Cause of the blaze, which began Tuesday afternoon, was not known.

Winds and hot, dry weather left the hills tinder-dry this fall.

A brush fire in the same general area destroyed more than 100 houses and blackened 10,000 acres three years ago.

Baptists electing officers

COLUMBIA, Mo. (AP) — The general assembly of the Missouri Baptist Convention moved into a belated election of officers today, amid new signs of a revolt against its establishment. Dr. H. L. McElanahan, who has been interim executive secretary since August, sought to resign as a candidate for the job; but his resignation was not immediately accepted by the 51 members of the convention's executive board.

One-third of the 12 members on the convention's executive committee were up for reelection, and there was a move in the assembly to reject the report of the nominating committee and bring in new faces.

It was a continuation of a tumultuous session Tuesday afternoon in which a spokesman for an auditing firm reported the convention has been operating in the red and its management had resorted to post-dated checks to pay some bills.

Dr. McElanahan was elevated to the executive secretary's job in August on the death of Dr. Earl O. Harding, who had held the job for 15 years. When he died, he was in the midst of a controversy over his accounting for some of the convention's money and personal allowances advanced to him by the executive committee and executive board.

The convention is made up of 533,000 members of Southern Baptist churches in Missouri, and most of the 2,000 messengers they have sent to the annual assembly sat in on the special discussion of its money problems.

There was one estimate that the convention was $120,000 in the hole.

Robert Keatley, chairman of Ameribanc Inc. at St. Joseph, Mo., relayed a report that two accounting firms which studied the financial records found they were inefficient and inadequate.

Bond blasts state sales tax probers

ST. LOUIS (AP)—Gov. Christopher S. Bond has blasted drafters of a University of Missouri-St. Louis state sales tax study, which initially said the state had lost $230 million in collections but then was revised to a figure of only $60 million.

"The most charitable thing you could say of them is that they're grossly incompetent," Bond said during a wide-ranging press conference here Tuesday.

The study covered a six-year period during the administration of former Democratic Gov. Warren E. Hearnes, and an error in calculation was discovered after Hearnes convinced the drafters to rereck their figures.

Bond questioned the reliability of the corrected study, also, saying state officials had found even more errors in that version. It appears now, he said, that the study shows the state was collecting more sales tax than was due it.

"I think the whole study is useless," the governor said. He noted, however, that his administration has found gaps in previous sales tax collection practices, and pointed out that tax collection rose 11 per cent during the first nine months of his term, a greater jump than during the same period in 1972.

On other topics, Bond said he would favor issuance of special license plates to Missouri car owners if the fee was sufficient.

"I have no objection to raising additional revenue for the state through purchase of special plates," he commented. "I would suggest a $50 figure."

The governor recently vetoed legislation that would continue low-numbered plates after this year for a premium fee of $12, claiming that amount was not sufficient to cover costs.

Bond also indicated a special session of the General Assembly may be called this fall to deal with state reorganization. But he said that would depend on whether "possible success would outweigh the inconvenience."

But the governor, who vetoed a reorganization measure earlier this year after it was changed by the legislature, predicted he would have a "workable program" for reorganization developed by mid-November.

In commenting on the granting of pardons to crime figures by former Gov. Hearnes and former Lt. Gov. William S. Morris during the closing days of the Hearnes administration, Bond said he felt the actions were questionable.

Proper procedures had not been followed, he noted, and added that he would not grant pardons unless they were investigated and approved by the Probation and Parole Board.

Bond also said he felt fellow Republicans John C. Danforth, attorney general, and Lt. Gov. William Phelps had good chances of defeating incumbent Democrat Thomas F. Eagleton for the U.S. Senate in next year's election. But he said he did not know if either man would run.

County reassessment delayed by weather

The reassessment of Pettis County has been delayed again, hopefully only for a few days.

Pettis County Presiding Judge Harry Walch said the president of the Continental Appraisal Co., Tom Valentine, said Monday he would be unable to fly into Sedalia either Monday or Tuesday because of bad weather.

Valentine earlier had indicated to the court that he would begin setting up his company's headquarters either Monday or Tuesday in a room on the second floor of the county courthouse.

"He (Valentine) said he hoped to be here in the middle of the week if the weather clears," Walch said.

Continental, of Buffalo, N.Y., was awarded a $144,500 contract this past summer to reappraise the county. Actual work was originally expected to begin in September but has been delayed to about Dec. 1, according to Valentine.

Sedalians are named new members

Two new representatives were elected Tuesday to the Pettis County area board of the Missouri Valley Human Resource Development Corp. (MVHRDC) and will serve 5-year terms on the six-county board of directors.

Elected to represent low income persons was Sandy Scott, 201 South Quincy, while Mrs. Geraldine Ford, 728 West Cooper, was elected to represent business interests for the Pettis County group.

John Koepf, deputy director of the area MVHRDC, said that Pettis County now has five board members and is entitled to one more to represent local religious groups.

One of the three vacancies was created when a previous board member, Anna Lee Ray, moved from Sedalia.

Mrs. Ford is co-owner with her husband of the Main Street Bar, 206 East Main.

Also elected to serve as an alternate for Pettis County was Mrs. Ella Virgil, 525 North Osage.

Ralph Lee, a current member of the Pettis County board, said that in the past little enthusiasm has been shown in Pettis County for membership on the board, which oversees such federally funded programs as Head Start, Rent-A-Kid, and Manpower.

Koepf told the group that "we need people who can stand up and be counted," as members of the board.

Rebozo bank probe being completed

WASHINGTON (AP) — A decision on whether to suspend President Nixon's close friend, Charles G. "Bebe" Rebozo, as chairman and president of a Florida bank will await completion of an investigation, probably within three weeks, the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp. says.

FDIC Chairman Frank Wille said Tuesday his regulatory agency's three-member board had approved the policy unanimously.

Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., had asked the FDIC to suspend Rebozo immediately from leadership of the Key Biscayne Bank & Trust Co., but Wille said the board wanted to comply with "elemental standards of due process."

The investigation — begun last Friday and expected to be over within three weeks — involves a $195,000 loan issued by Rebozo's bank in 1968.

Rebozo accepted 900 shares of stock, later discovered to be stolen, as security. Rebozo spokesmen have denied published reports that the banker cashed 300 of the shares after learning they had been purloined.

Wille said a second FDIC investigation, involving the hiring of Franklin S. DeBoer to head the trust department of Rebozo's bank, should be completed next week.

Months before joining the bank DeBoer had been accused by the Securities and Exchange Commission of appropriating money of a public company for his own use.

Wille would not say whether the FDIC was looking into secret cash payments of $100,000 to Rebozo by billionaire Howard Hughes in 1969 and 1970.

Two films begin new SFCC series

Eight short experimental films were shown Tuesday night at the State Fair Community College Student Union, marking the beginning of a semester-long film series to be presented this year.

The films conveyed a variety of cinematic styles from social comment to surrealism. And the music ranged from classic orchestration in "Ballet Adagio" by Norman McLaren, to an electronic sound score in "Watersmith" by Will Hindle.

Jerry White, SFCC audiovisual specialist, said this is the first year that experimental films will be shown on a regular basis. He said he hopes to have two programs each month of the school year. The films are part of SFCC's Arts and Lecture Series.

The next film program will be at 8 p.m. Tuesday, Nov. 13, in SFCC's Student Union. The films will be "Taking Off," a Cannes Film Festival winner, and "The Resurrection of Broncho Billy."

Judge denies petition by physician

KANSAS CITY (AP) — U. S. District Court Judge William H. Becker has denied a petition by former osteopath, Richard P. Mucie, to have his medical license restored and his conviction on manslaughter by abortion set aside.

Mucie was charged and subsequently convicted of performing an abortion on a 19-year-old University of Oklahoma coed who allegedly died as a result of the abortion. He was sentenced to 10 years in prison and served from Jan. 28, 1970 to March 30, 1971.

On May 4, 1971, the State Board of Registration for the Healing Arts revoked his license on the basis of the manslaughter conviction.

Judge Becker in denying the petition said Mucie has effective legal remedies available in the state courts which he has not yet pursued.

Judo classes are offered in Sedalia

The Sedalia Recreation Department will offer judo classes beginning Nov. 8 at Convention Hall in Liberty Park.

Two classes will be held this season, one from 7 to 8 p.m. for those students between six and 16 years of age, and one from 8 to 9 p.m. for persons 17 years old and above.

The classes will be taught by Sgt. George Hunn, Whiteman AFB, who has a black belt in judo. The classes will be limited to 15 students per class and will be on a first come, first served basis.

Registration may be made at the Park Board Office, Convention Hall, from 8 a.m. to noon and 1 to 5 p.m.

The dominant ram in a herd of Rocky Mountain bighorn sheep usually gets the pick of breeding females. National Geographic says. But dominant rams must wage more horn-splintering fights with youthful challengers, and consequently can expect shorter lifespans than also-rans.

Hall's former secretary quits post

Mrs. Nyra Price, secretary to former city economic developer Bill Hall, has resigned, according to Mayor Jerry Jones. Mrs. Price had been handling correspondence and other business related to the department of economic development following Hall's resignation in late August.

Mrs. Price went to work for Rival Manufacturing Co., which also employed Hall.

Jones said Monday that the City Council remains divided on what to do about a successor to Hall, and doubted that any action would be taken until after the spring city elections.

The office of the director of economic development, located just opposite the mayor's in the new Municipal Building and nearly as large, remains vacant.

Ben Franklin, once a London resident, had nothing good to say about the traditional British roast beef: "The English dinner of a joint of meat and a pudding, as it is called, or pot luck... is bad luck in England."

Foresee full work force soon

The work force at Permaneer Corp., here may soon be back to full capacity due to recent Congressional approval of funds to the Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD). Permaneer personnel director Jerry Jones said Tuesday.

Fifty-one employees of the firm were temporarily dismissed from the firm's 3:30 p.m.-midnight "second" shift in late September, Jones said, because of a decline in demand for Permaneer products.

Jones attributed this decline to "repressive interest rates and the high cost of lumber." Another factor, he said, "was the fact that Congress had not designated any money for HUD until a few days ago." This action, Jones said, "held in abeyance any extended federal construction efforts."

At the time of the employee cutback, there were "a little over 100 workers on the second shift," Jones said. In addition to the 51 employees laid off, several more workers were transferred to the 7 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. first shift. There are presently 20 employees on the second shift, Jones said.

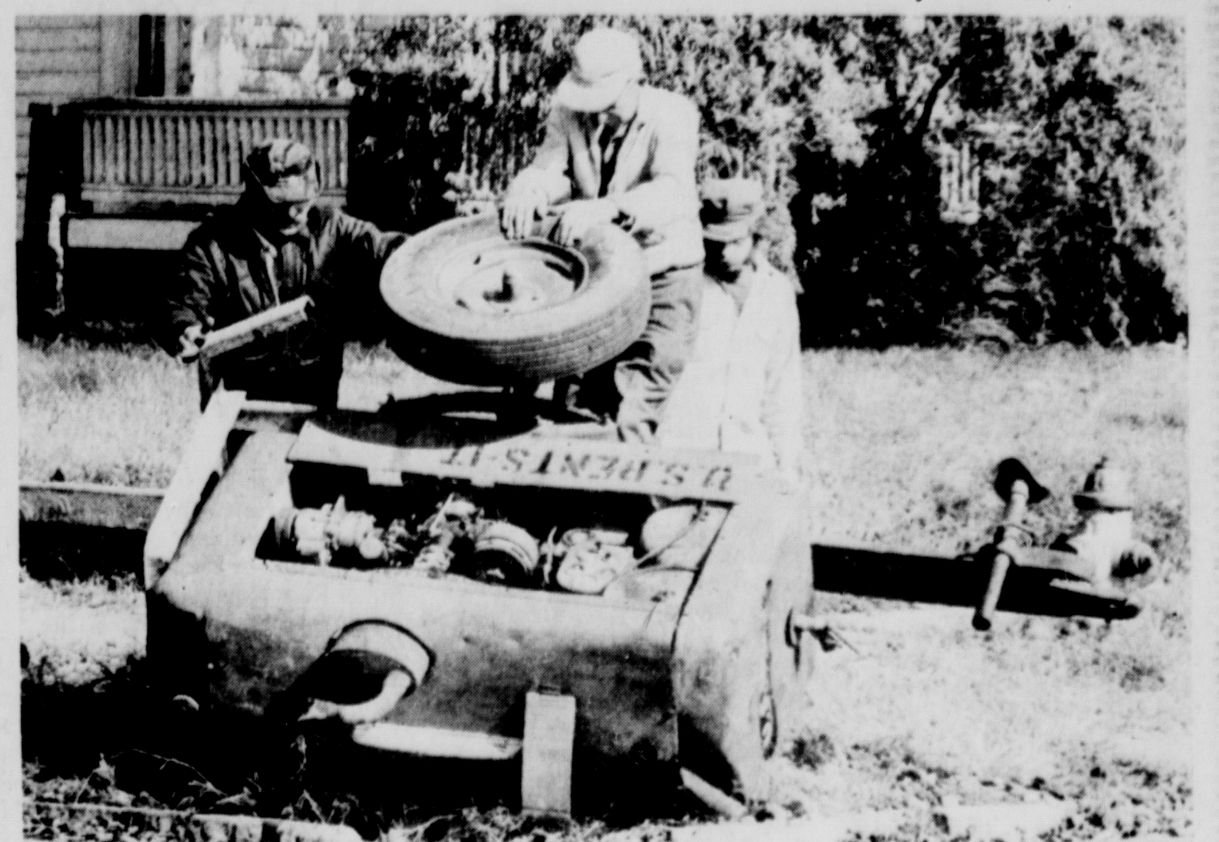

Although declining to pinpoint a date, Jones said he believed "the resumption in federal construction projects will mean we can be back at full employee capacity soon. It will be just a matter of time before we're back to two full shifts again."

Student reports

Roberta Knight, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Knight, Hughesville, will present a senior art exhibit Monday through Nov. 10 at Central Missouri State University, Warrensburg.

Miss Knight, an interior design major, will display etchings, drawings and other assorted art works. The display, which will be shown at the Grinstead Gallery, will also feature art works by Devon Boggs, Jefferson City, another CMSU student.

Miss Knight will graduate in November from the University.

Compressor overturns

Virgil Staus, center, an employee of Paul Graham Concrete Products, attempts to turn over an air compressor that broke loose while being towed shortly after noon Tuesday and flipped over at Seventh and Massachusetts. Staus and the other two men in the photo, who are unidentified, were unable to get the compressor upright and had to await assistance. The incident occurred when the truck and air compressor hit the dip in the road at the intersection.

Teamsters threatened with civil suit

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Justice Department has served notice it intends to sue the Teamsters Union and the nation's trucking industry unless they halt alleged discrimination against blacks and Spanish-Americans.

The union and the industry have resisted government proposals to change the seniority system to make it easier for minority workers to transfer to higher-paying jobs and to adopt a recruitment and hiring program for such workers, the department said.

Asst. Atty. Gen. J. Stanley Pottinger disclosed the threatened civil rights suit in similarly worded letters Tuesday to the Teamsters, 514 trucking companies and Trucking Employers Inc., which represents the firms in collective bargaining.

Department spokesman John Wilson said the government was giving the union and companies 30 days to reply, and "then what we contemplate is a suit involving the union, the employers' organization and five or six individual companies as representatives of the class of defendants."

The department said trucking industry employment now is 7 or 8 per cent black and 2.5 per cent Spanish-American, with the minority workers typically assigned to such jobs as janitor or dockman.

Jamaica hosts flying fashions

MONTEGO BAY, Jamaica (AP) — The in-flight fashion show is a new treat for passengers en route here from New York.

As models step down the aisle in beach and vacation styles, it could be Paris or Rome. It is, instead, 30,000 feet up on an Air Jamaica flight. Models are stewardesses, and the shows are regular features on all the airline's flights.

Marian Morales of the Jamaican Fashion Guild says the in-flight shows are a means of showcasing Jamaica's contribution to the world's fashion industry.

Jamaica is a small but growing influence in the fashion world. Last year, more than $9 million-worth of apparel was exported and 5,000 persons were employed in the clothing industry.

Miss Morales says Jamaican fashions reflect the mood of the island. "Designers here prefer an elegant and sophisticated look," she added. "They're very partial to hand-screened prints, bright colors and careful detailing."

Miss Morales says Jamaican fashions are particularly well suited for spring and summer wear. She describes the collection now being marketed in the United States as "sophisticated with a simple, basic line." Sizes range from 6 to 20, she added.

The fashions range from evening gowns to hand-embroidered tennis dresses, from casual wear to suits and dresses suitable for business women.

While southern and western parts of the United States are important markets for Jamaican designers because their climates are warmer, the clothes are gaining popularity throughout North America, she said.

PTA news

KNOB NOSTER — Knob Noster and Whitman AFB Elementary schools will hold all-school parent-teacher conferences Monday and Tuesday. The conferences are designed to replace grade cards for the first and third quarters and to promote communication.

An all day workshop for teachers of grades seven to 12 will be held Monday. Dr. Richard Bingham, Mid-Continent Regional Educational Laboratory, will be speaker and panelist.

Parents of children in grades kindergarten to six have been scheduled for conferences with teachers Monday and Tuesday. Students, bus drivers and lunchroom personnel will have the day off Monday.

Club notes

The annual china show of the Sedalia Susans China Painting Club will be held from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Dec. 8 at the Farm and Home Building. It was decided at the club's regular meeting Saturday at the home of Mrs. Gwendolyn Tuck.

Mrs. Viola Hooper, Independence, gave a lesson on the second firing of apples, pears and peaches at the monthly meeting.

The annual Christmas Luncheon of the Stephen College Alumnae Club of Sedalia will be held Dec. 8 at State Fair Restaurant. It was announced at a meeting of the club Saturday at the home of Mrs. C.E. Van Horn, 1814 West 11th.

A memorial service was given for Delaine Lange and a poem written in her memory by Hazel Lang was read.

A pot luck supper was served to 30 persons Thursday night at the meeting of the Willing Worker Circle at United Methodist Church.

The next meeting will be held Nov. 13, since the regular date falls on Thanksgiving.

Sunnyside Extension Homemakers club recently selected Mrs. Clarence Wells as clubwoman of the year at a meeting at the home of Mrs. Wells. She will represent the club at the fall luncheon of Pettis County Homemakers Extension Clubs.

A donation of $5 was voted for the Pennies for Friendship Fund, and tickets were purchased for the Fall Festival. The next meeting will be with Mrs. Otis Thomas, Route 4.

Whether over-sized or small, pocketbooks this season are all soft. The materials are leather, vinyl and canvas.

Polly's pointers

Baby's books show wear

By POLLY CRAMER
Polly's problem

DEAR POLLY — My babies enjoy their plastic story books and I like them since they cannot be torn or chewed. These books do wrinkle very easily from rough baby handling and I cannot find anything that will smooth out the wrinkles. Any ironing, even if on very low, will melt the plastic material. I hope some reader knows of another method. — MARY G.

DEAR POLLY — My Pet Peeve is with the designs of refrigerators and stoves, too. Why are they made with so many corners and crevices to catch dirt? There are so many pieces that must be brushed to get clean. Some parts are so big and awkward that it almost takes an engineer to put them back together. With all the knowledge of our space age it seems something could be devised that would be easier to clean.

Knobs on stoves should be easy to remove and not become loose just by doing this. They should be smooth for easy cleaning. We do not need all those hard-to-clean decorations. There is beauty in smooth, clean hard-line lines. If a man had to clean the stoves and refrigerators and other appliances of the future they would quickly improve the designs. — MRS. G.B.

DEAR POLLY — Like Alice, we, too, have some cement spots on the aluminum siding on our house. I used fine sandpaper on the spots of our house and a brick to remove the dried cement from the foundation. I would advise Alice first to try the sandpaper where it will not show. If it works as it did for me then she could continue. — L.R.

DEAR READERS — One of the makers of such siding told me that, of course, Alice's first mistake was in not covering the siding before her husband put down the cement patio but hindsight is easier than foresight. Sandpaper could scratch the paint if her siding is painted. They suggest some type of an abrasive household cleanser. If that does not work try a heavy duty one. As a last resort an etching cleanser (bought at a hardware store) could be used but directions must be carefully followed. — POLLY

Justice Department putting on brave face

By MARGARET GENTRY
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Raw from the wounds of Watergate, the Justice Department is putting on a brave face and turning inward to mend.

It was to have been the show piece for a law and order President. It became a house beset by one morale-shattering upheaval after another.

As the scandal unfolded with the spring, one attorney general was accused of crimes and other standard bearers were accused of impropriety. The mood was grim.

President Nixon turned then to Elliot L. Richardson and William D. Ruckelshaus, two administration men who stood untouched and generally regarded as honorable, truthful, upright. They were sent as the rescuers to convince a doubting public that Justice, too, housed those virtues.

"There was a ferment of ideas, an enthusiasm they generated," an associate recalls now.

With Richardson as attorney general and Ruckelshaus as his deputy, debate bounced incessantly around the burnished walnut conference table. Memos flew like wildfire.

Gone were the days of John N. Mitchell, Nixon's first attorney general, a man now accused of violating the law he was supposed to enforce.

Gone were the 10 months of Richard Kleindienst, a man who resigned as the scandal lapped close to him.

And gone now are Richardson and Ruckelshaus, who promised justice devoid of politics, promised a Watergate investigation free of outside pressure, and quit as the ultimate act to keep the vow.

Richardson made it his mission to restore public confidence in the Justice Department in a campaign of speeches backed up step by step with action. There were indications he was succeeding.

There were even stronger indications that he had cheered disheartened employees languishing for a champion.

Ten days ago, cheer abruptly turned to despair. Ranking officials considered resigning but kept their agony to themselves.

"Where do we go from here? I don't know. No one knows. It's too soon," mourned a division head.

As the week wore on, ranking officials agreed to stay in answer to urgent pleas from Solicitor General Robert H. Bork who became acting attorney general and assumed responsibilities his academic training left him ill-prepared to handle.

With the Watergate case dominating his attention, he urged department officials to carry on as they would have under Richardson.

The uncertainty of a caretaker chief now is compounded by Bork's avowed position on the restructured Watergate investigation and the special prosecutor he is soon to appoint.

Just as Richardson did with the first prosecutor, Bork says he will tolerate no interference with the investigation and the man running it. As did Richardson he suggests he would resign rather than compromise the probe.

If Bork avoids a confrontation forcing him to quit, he could remain for months as acting attorney general. The President seems unlikely to nominate a successor, subject to Senate confirmation, until smoother sailing is in sight on Capitol Hill.

In view of the long uncertain months ahead, Justice Department officials were left guessing about the future of Richardson's pet projects.

Some undoubtedly will collapse, but Richardson himself soon will write Bork urging him to press forward with proposals for the depoliticizing effort.

Personal advisers to Richardson and Ruckelshaus have agreed to stay at the department long enough to wrap up details of those projects and ease the transition.

Department sources say that one of the most important projects — a top to bottom review of the FBI — probably will continue but may not be carried as far as Richardson and Ruckelshaus wished.

FBI Director Clarence M. Kelley has cooperated with the internal review, but has never pushed it.

Richardson's departure also cast doubt on the fate of legislation he intended to propose to Congress to guard computer files maintained by the FBI and other government agencies from outside snoops.

The proposal, designed to protect individual rights to privacy, has been circulated to other government agencies for comment and would have been sent to Congress within a few months. Sources said the White House so far has taken no position on it.

Richardson had planned to announce last week a tentative proposal for removing the political endorsements traditionally required for the appointment of federal judges.

He plans to make the same proposal as a private citizen, but whether the administration now will adopt it remains uncertain.

Richardson had been on the verge of creating an inspector general's office as a Justice Department watchdog to investigate accusations of wrongdoing on the part of department employees.

He was almost ready to issue regulations imposing new restrictions on government wiretaps.

Richardson had strengthened the attorney general's authority over U.S. attorneys and at the same time, appointed 16 of them to an advisory committee to give them a larger policy-making voice.

A knowledgeable source predicted that the attorneys, faced with uncertain leadership in Washington, will reassert control over their private baronies.

Two days before his resignation, Richardson issued regulations overhauling the department's management structure. Much of that system will operate as Richardson intended, said officials involved in setting it up.

But one key element — an "executive secretariat" designed as a final filter on research papers going to the attorney general — may fall by the wayside.

The management specialist Richardson had chosen to set up the office had not yet joined the department and probably won't now.

Richardson considered orderly management an essential tool for his long-range goal of bringing coordinated planning to separate parts of the criminal justice system.

He had hoped for more reliable crime statistics and with that data, he envisioned improvements in the apprehension, deterrence and treatment of offenders.

To that long-term end, Richardson granted new research and policy-making authority to the department's think-tank Office of Criminal Justice.

Though Richardson's major projects hang in limbo, others already were written into department regulations. The key ones:

—Required employees to keep written records of conversations on pending cases by outsiders not involved in the cases. The purpose was "to discourage approaches . . . by those who are not confident of the purity of their motives" as well as to provide written records to rebut charges of impropriety.

—Required other government agencies to seek Justice Department approval before denying public requests for material under the Freedom of Information Act.

—Required federal law enforcement officials to get the attorney general's personal approval before questioning or arresting any newsmen in connection with his news reporting duties.

So what happens to the imprint of Richardson's five whirlwind months at Justice?

"We go on," they say on the fifth floor clustered outside the attorney general's office suite with walls now bare of the customary plaques and photographs, premises that soon will lie in dark and silent waiting.

"It's an extraordinarily difficult time," says Bork, down the hall in the solicitor general's office he will continue to occupy.

NL Cy Young nod to Seaver

NEW YORK (AP) — Tom Seaver once said he'd be happy to last five years in the majors. Today, he is the owner of a second Cy Young Award as the National League's best pitcher.

"When I first started playing,

I told my wife I'd be happy to get five years in the big leagues," the New York Mets right-hander said Tuesday after winning his second Cy Young Award in seven seasons in the majors.

Kaysinger Conference

Gene Cotton, Bulldogs face rebuilding season at Stover

By BOB SHACKELFORD
Staff Sports Writer

STOVER — A rebuilding year is in order for the Bulldogs of Stover in 1973-74. Graduated is the nucleus of the fine club that posted three consecutive 20-win seasons; no longer will the opposition have to contend with the likes of the Marriott cousins, Paul and Phillip; Steve Fischer, and peppery guard, Noel Hepard. Facing this regrouping task is Coach Gene Cotton who brings two years experience from Walker, Mo.

Ron Hodges, a 6-0 junior, is the lone starter returning from last season's 20-8 crew that finished third in the conference with a 6-2 mark. As a sophomore in 72-73, Hodges had an 11.9 scoring average. Additional scoring in the soon to be started campaign is going to have to come from inexperienced personnel; a senior, 6-1 Robert Mueller got in limited varsity time as did 6-0 junior Terry Newgaard.

The balance of the load is going to have to be carried by a B team that finished 11-8 a year ago; seniors Mark Stevens (6-5) and David Marriott (5-9); junior Kevin Viebrock (5-8); and sophomores Kurt Hagedorn (5-10), Alan Taylor (5-10) and Alan Franklin (5-5).

Cotton leans to Smithton as the favorite in the Kaysinger Conference and faces the unenviable task of venturing into the Tigers den for their opener on Nov. 2 — what a way to be greeted into the conference! The new coach thinks LaMonte has a shot at the top spot and lists Cole Camp and Sacred Heart in the "could surprise" category.

"We're going to be a young team and the big problem we have to overcome is inexperience. We will be short but the kids are fine jumpers. Our offense will probably be slow to come around, but after a few games I expect it to improve. Our strongest point is our bench strength; we have nine boys capable of playing varsity ball," is the way Cotton describes his team.

The four previously mentioned graduates took with them 78 per cent of the point scored last season; this is obviously going to be sorely missed. Four years ago Stover was in a similar plight (6-19 in 1969) and came back in 1970 to go to the state tournament. They're in that same rebuilding stage now, but count on it — the Bulldogs will be back.

(UPI)

St. Louis Blues can't cash in on power plays

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Coach Jean-Guy Talbot knows what's wrong with his St. Louis Blues, but as yet he has no solution.

The 41-year-old onetime Montreal Canadian and Blues defenseman watched with anguish Tuesday night as St. Louis again proved powerless on the power play.

Six times the Blues failed to score while the Los Angeles Kings were serving penalties, and the Kings waltzed off with a 3-2 National Hockey League triumph.

"It was a game that we could've got bombed in," conceded Los Angeles Coach Bobby Pulford, whose purple-clad skaters were outshot during a 2-0 first period.

But the Kings, the NHL's best at killing penalties last season, regrouped behind goaltender Rogatien Vachon and began rallying as the Blues faltered.

Lewis Busch undergoes surgery for ruptured disc

With the start of the season two weeks away, the State Fair Community College Roadrunners may have lost the services of 6-8 sophomore center Lewis Busch.

Busch, a high school all-state product from Carthage, Mo., underwent surgery Wednesday morning in Columbia's Boone County Hospital for a ruptured disc of the last lumbar.

"I won't have any idea how long he will be sidelined," said SFCC Coach Bill Barton. "He's definitely out for the first semester... he may miss the entire year," Barton added just before his departure to Columbia.

Busch, who started virtually every game in the Roadrunner' 1972-73 season, was the team's second-leading rebounder, behind all-region forward Charles Shell.

Barton said he thought Busch sustained the injury during pre-season practice this year, when he fell hard on the floor.

"The doctors in Columbia had hoped that the injury could be treated by medication and traction, but he was in so much pain that an operation is necessary," Barton concluded.

SFCC gains forfeiture

(Democrat-Capital Service)

HUTCHINSON, Kan. — State Fair Community College has received notification that a 91-90, double-overtime victory by Hutchinson, Kan., Community Junior College last season over the Roadrunners has been forfeited.

The forfeiture came as a result of the use of an ineligible player — Rudy Jackson. Jackson played in all 33 of the Blue Dragons games last season and led the team to a 29-4 record, including a second-place finish in the national JuCo basketball tourney here in March.

Jackson was found to have never completed high school in New York. After playing his freshman year at Hutchinson, Jackson transferred to Wichita State University, where he received a Missouri Valley Conference basketball scholarship. He has since been ruled ineligible for competition there.

SFCC played Hutchinson in the second round of the Blue Dragons Doubleheader. In that game, Jackson, Hutch's leading scorer, was held to only 10 points in the 91-90 setback.

The Roadrunners season's record for 1972-73 now reads 22-14.

Wrestling results

Main event — Jim Brunzell and Mike George defeated Bob Brown and Tokyo Joe in a best-of-three falls tag team match.

Semifinal — Baron Scicluna won on a disqualification over Danny Little Bear in their best-of-three falls bout.

Special match — Steve Bolas defeated Kabayoshi at 8:40 of their one-fall match.

Opening — Bob Brown and Jim Brunzell wrestled to a 20-minute draw.

Cards may get Metcalf back by Sunday's game

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Running back Terry Metcalf, sidelined since the fifth game of the season, may rejoin the St. Louis Cardinals in the National Football League Sunday.

Cards Coach Don Corveil said the 5-foot-10, 185-pound Metcalf, who suffered a twisted knee Oct. 14 against the Philadelphia Eagles, is practicing this week and may be ready for a test against the Denver Broncos.

Metcalf gained 133 yards in his NFL debut against the Eagles in September and when injured was the club's leading ground-gainer with 264 yards.

Corveil said linebacker Pete Barnes, who suffered a contusion near the area of his left eye during a 35-27 victory over the New York Giants, is doubtful against the Broncos.

Other Cardinals nursing injuries include offensive tackle Roger Finnie, sprained foot; center Mulligan, sprained knee; defensive tackle Bob Rowe, bruised hip, and defensive end Ron Yankowski, sprained thumb.

Rookie defensive tackle Bonnie Sloan, who has been out since the Sept. 16 opener, was declared ready to play against Denver.

Bufs picked over Nebraska

McClendon will finally solve Jackson, Miss. jinx

NEW YORK (AP) — Coach Charlie McClendon of Louisiana State hopes his team won't be looking ahead Saturday to Nov. 22 when it plays Alabama, but he knows that Mississippi will be looking back to last Nov. 4 when the Rebels and Tigers met in Jackson, Miss.

The final score last year was LSU 17, Ole Miss 16. The Mississippi press guide lists the score as "Ole Miss 16, LSU 10 plus 7," and questions how the Tigers could get off two plays in the final four seconds.

"Was it an itchy finger triggering the clock in Tiger Stadium that was at fault, or did LSU actually have a second left to play when Bert Jones launched the pass which ended with a 10-yard touchdown to Brad Davis?" Ole Miss wonders.

LSU hasn't beaten Mississippi in Jackson since they began playing there every other year in 1965, losing three and tying one.

It says here, though, that McClendon finally will beat Ole Miss in Jackson... 21-10.

Last week's mark was 30 right, 13 wrong and two ties for 793. It included the exact score of Kansas' 22-20 triumph over Iowa State.

For the season, the count is 340-117-10—844.

Ohio State at Illinois: "Ohio State is a great team, but never has there been a great team which couldn't get knocked off," says Illinois' Bob Blackman. He's right. Ohio State could get beat... by Michigan. Ohio State 33-21.

Iowa State at Oklahoma: Iowa State lost to Arkansas, Kansas State and Kansas by two points apiece and Coach Earle Bruce has a new defense for Oklahoma. "We're gonna play 12 men," he says. Won't help. Oklahoma 42-14.

Indiana at Michigan: "I think I can see the light at the end of the tunnel," says 2-5 Indiana's Lee Corso. "Trouble is, I don't know how long the tunnel is." Well, Lee, it doesn't end in Ann Arbor. Michigan 42-0.

Navy at Notre Dame: Irish have designs on the national championship. Notre Dame 38-7.

Penn State at Maryland: Penn State has won its last three by a total score of 165-23.

This one will be closer. Penn State 28-14.

Arizona State at Utah: Last year's score was 59-48 Arizona State. This year's? Arizona State 42-17.

Southern California at California: Trojans start a new unbeaten streak. Southern Cal 35-7.

Washington at UCLA: Bruins-Trojans on Nov. 24 will decide the Pac-8 race. UCLA 56-7. Georgia at Tennessee: Is it news when a Vol bites a Bull-dog? Tennessee 28-17.

Kansas State at Missouri: Tigers looking back to Colorado and ahead to Oklahoma... but not past K-State. Missouri 24-10.

Colorado at Nebraska: Buffs knocked off Missouri last week. When you're hot, you're hot. Upset Special of the Week... Colorado 21-17.

Tulane at Kentucky: Green Wave's unbeaten record on the line. Tulane 18-14.

In the Big 8

Top four gearing for bottom four

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Big Eight schedule has the conference's four top teams pitted against the lower half of the league Saturday. Unde-feated Oklahoma, third-ranked in the nation, is preparing for the struggling Iowa State Cyclones, last with no wins, three losses.

As ISU's luck would have it, they play at the Pit in Norman. "We had a fine workout," Cy-clone Coach Earle Bruce said Tuesday. "Our defense worked against the wishbone option and our offense worked on timing and its passing attack."

Oklahoma Coach Barry Switzer reports the only player who'll be unable to suit up for the Cyclones is defensive corner-back Clyde Powers, the Sooners' leading interceptor with four. Following Tuesday's practice, Switzer said, "we looked real snappy, offensively and defensively."

Colorado at Nebraska—a hint, perhaps of what two gifted football teams will be about in the last half of the conference race. Each welcomes the re-turn of two offensive spark-plugs, stand-out split end Frosty Anderson for Nebraska, full-back Bo Matthews for the Bu-falo. "Frosty was giving us the big play and we've missed him in the past few games," said Coach Tom Osborne. Anderson lead the conference in pass re-cptions when he left the Mis-souri contest three games ago with a dislocated shoulder.

Colorado, 2-1, is tied for second with Missouri and Kansas. Nebraska finds itself in the strange confines of fifth place.

The word at Stillwater is de-fense; more precisely, pass de-fense. Oklahoma State's next stop is Kansas, characterized this year by the passing of David Jaynes.

This will be Kansas' first ex-perience of the year with the wishbone. It comes at a time when the Jayhawks are badly hurt. Defensive end Don Goode is out for the rest of the season with a shoulder separation; safety Jim David, with a broken arm. Junior defensive end Jeff Turner and junior line-backer Steve Towle are hurt, but considered hopeful for the game.

The Wildcats may still be licking wounds inflicted by Ok-lahoma to the tune of 56-14, but looking to Saturday's trip to Missouri. Kansas State Coach Vince Gibson vows, "We ain't gonna quit, I guarantee... We're gonna fight and scrap," hoping to pull even at 2-2.

Missouri middle guard Harris Butler was conspicuous by his absence from practice Tuesday.

Dead-eye Stabler earns NFL award

OAKLAND (AP) — Ken Stabler set a National Football League passing effectiveness record in Oakland's 34-21 victory over Baltimore.

But Stabler vetoed Coach John Madden's call for a pass on the play that produced the Raiders' final clinching touch-down.

Instead of throwing, Stabler handed off to Clarence Davis on a sweep. Davis broke loose for a 32-yard TD run with 1:26 left.

Stabler was named Tuesday as The Associated Press' National Football League's Offens-ive Player of the Week for com-pleting 25 of 29 passes.

His .862 completion per-centage broke Sammy Baugh's record of .857 set with Wash-ington in 1945. Stabler passed for 304 yards and two touchdowns.

Other nominees for the honor were Philadelphia's Roman Gab-riel, Detroit's Albie Taylor, Jim Hart of St. Louis, and Bu-falo's O.J. Simpson.

"I was more concerned with points, not completions and records," said Stabler, a 27-year-old left-hander.

"We were third-and-six on the Baltimore 32 with 1:26 to go and leading just 27-21," he re-called. "We needed to control the clock. We were just work-ing for the first down."

"At the sideline, they were thinking play-action pass, and I said: 'If that's what you want, okay, but I don't really feel it. So I talked the coach out of it.'"

After Davis galloped for the decisive touchdown, Stabler trotted up to Madden and said, "That's one for me."

"He has a feeling for finding the open man. He's just a nat-ural quarterback," Madden said of Stabler, the former under-study to veteran Daryle Lam-onica.

In one stretch, Stabler com-pleted 14 passes in a row against the Colts, coming with-in one completion of tying the NFL record of 15.

"When you have the caliber of receivers we have, you could just drop kick the ball out there," Stabler said of Fred Bi-letnikoff, Bob Moore, and Mike Siani.

Columbia Hickman stands in way of S-C's quest for share of title

By VAUGHN HART
Sports Editor

Most people are probably under the impression that a four-team conference leaves little in the way of competition. However, when that league is the Central Missouri Conference, well, just about anything can happen.

Granted, most of the football races in recent years have been between Jefferson City and Columbia. But this year it's a three-team affair.

With their spirits high and their offense even higher, the Smith-Cotton Tigers are trying to establish the best won-lost record since at least 1965. That season, the Bengals won six of 10 games. So far this season, S-C is 5-2.

If the team goes through the rest of the campaign undefeated and finishes 8-2, it would be the best S-C record since Ralph "Stub" Dow's 1955 club that won eight and lost only one.

But standing in the way of the Tigers in that quest is one of the toughest 4-A teams in Missouri — Columbia Hickman. A team that sports a perfect 7-0 record and is within one win of capturing its second consecutive CMC title.

Columbia, led by Mr. Do-It-All quarterback Leo Lewis, Jr., has a high-powered offense that has amassed 198 points. Defensively, the Kewpies are just a tough, yielding only 28 points.

When Hickman faces the Tigers Friday night in Columbia, the Kewpies will be facing one of the toughest offense they've seen all season. S-C has put 190 points on the board. The Tigers have been virtually unstoppable in their last three games, which have seen Greg Cook's charges tally 124 of their points.

Defensively, the Tigers have limited their opponents to only 11.8 points per game.

Hickman is known mostly for its big plays, many of which sophomore Lewis has turned in himself. He's a threat not only rushing the ball, but also when he gets his hands on it via punts and kickoffs. That basically accounts for the fact that the Tigers hold a wide lead in first downs, 101-70.

Both teams have demonstrated extremely good ball control, with most of the yardage coming on the ground. Here again S-C holds an edge, 1,676-1,335.

In the passing department, which could well be the turning point in Friday's game, the Kewpies hold the edge, 399-253.

"We are, I sincerely feel, mentally ready," said Cook Tuesday, as he assessed his club. "In the past, we have felt that we could give them (Columbia) a good ball game and hope that some breaks came our way. This year, however, we (myself and the players) feel that they are no better than we are... giving us the right attitude... I've said it all along, we can play football with anyone... anyone."

Since losing their second game of the season to Jefferson City Helias, the Tigers have steadily improved. And if they hit their peak this week, the CMC could wind up in a three-way tie.

Columbia has won over both Hannibal (35-0) and Jefferson City (9-6). Jefferson City is 2-1 with wins over S-C (21-6) and Hannibal (34-12). Smith-Cotton's mark is 1-1, with the win coming over Hannibal, 49-6.

One of two things will come out of Friday night's game. Should the Tigers spring an upset, they would throw the final standings into a three-way tie. A Columbia win or even a tie, would see the Kewpies winning the championship.

Following last week's shutout win over Hannibal, second-year Hickman Coach Tom Travis said, "This game against Sedalia is our biggest of the year... we set as a goal each season to win the conference championship, and this is what we'll be playing for against Smith-Cotton... we've been very impressed with their football team this season, they seem to look better every time we see them... they have a fine offense, with a powerful running game headed up by (Dane) Henningsen, who has us really concerned."

Henningsen, at 6-2, 205 pounds, has had most coaches concerned this year... who wouldn't be concerned if you were facing the leading ground-gainer in central-Missouri, as well as the league? Henningsen has rushed for 857 yards on 132 touchdowns. He's also scored 13 touchdowns for 78 points.

Although the senior transfer didn't have his best yardage effort of the season against Kansas City O'Hara last week in a 54-14 rout, he gave evidence that an earlier-season ankle injury is completely healed. He scored four TD's and was never brought down one-on-one.

He has quickness and speed to go along with his size. Cook runs him up the middle, off-tackle, as well as on sweeps.

No doubt, Columbia is concentrating a lot of their defensive efforts this week on him.

In the Tigers' camp, Cook counted only one injury from Friday's game with O'Hara — defensive end Jim Giokaris, who suffered a slight strained knee. However, Cook, now in his fourth and most productive year at Smith-Cotton, was more than 50 per cent sure that he would be ready for Friday.

Underhanded trick

Phoenix trades Hawkins to Lakers for Erickson

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The Phoenix Suns had their differences with controversial Connie Hawkins and the Los Angeles Lakers were unable to come to terms with holdout Keith Erickson, so the two National Basketball association teams swapped problems.

Los Angeles hopes to gain added scoring punch at forward and Phoenix is looking to bolster an erratic defense.

To obtain Hawkins, 31, hampered by injuries this season, the Lakers Tuesday traded Erickson, 29, who never reported to the club this year because of a salary dispute, and their second choice in the 1974 NBA draft.

Hawkins has played four years in the NBA after two in the ABA.

With Phoenix Hawkins has been accused of lackadaisical play, skipping practices and showing up late.

"I've had trouble sustaining concentration for really long periods of time," said Hawkins. "I'm going to try concentrating more and be more serious about basketball."

The 6-foot-8 Hawkins may lack some defensive skills but he has averaged 20.7 points a game at forward, where the Lakers have two rebounding specialists—Bill Bridges and Happy Hairston.

Erickson, in his eighth year, played previously with San Francisco and Chicago.

He remained a holdout, reportedly demanding that his salary, said to be $90,000 a year, be raised to $150,000. It was reported he spurned a Laker offer of $105,000.

Easy win for Smith

PARIS — Defending champion Stan Smith of Sea Pines, S.C., scored an easy 6-3, 6-1 second-round victory over Jeff Borowiak of Lafayette, Calif., in the French Indoor Tennis Championship, while Tom Gorman of Seattle withstood a rally by Onny Parun to turn back the New Zealander 6-2, 3-6, 9-7.

Tennessee State stays atop small college poll

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Powerful Tennessee State remained on top and once-mighty Delaware almost tumbled out of the top ten in the Associated Press' weekly College Division football poll.

Tennessee State ran its record to 7-0 with a 21-6 decision over Southern University last Saturday. That was impressive enough to earn 28 of 45 first-place votes from a nationwide panel of sports writers and broadcasters Tuesday. Tennessee State collected 874 points.

Delaware, riding a 20-game winning streak two weeks ago, was beaten by Temple 31-8. It was the Blue Hens' second straight loss, against six victories, and virtually ended their hopes for a third consecutive college division national title.

Delaware fell from second in the poll last week down to 10th this week.

Hawaii, 6-0, took over second place after edging Nevada-Las Vegas 31-29. The Rainbows picked up six first-place votes and 775 points.

Western Kentucky jumped from fifth to third on the strength of a 34-7 romp over Morehead State. Western Kentucky, 7-0, collected 635 points and two first-place votes.

Cal Poly-SLO, 6-0 after beating Fresno State 28-14, remained fourth with 529 points and five first-place votes. South Dakota, 7-1, advanced one spot to fifth after beating Augustana, S.D. 28-21.

Louisiana Tech, also 7-1, climbed two places to sixth following a 26-7 victory over Southeastern Louisiana. Wittenberg got two first-place votes and held seventh place after topping Mount Union 35-17 for its seventh straight victory.

North Dakota State, 8-1, moved up two spots to eighth and got one first-place vote after trimming South Dakota State 24-14. Boise State, 6-1, crushed Montana 66-7 and jumped from 11th to ninth. Delaware was 10th.

Completing the top 15 were Elon, Nevada-Las Vegas, Grambling, Carson-Newman and Eastern Michigan. Elon had one first-place vote.

Vitamin A and dairy products

Dear Dr. Lamb — Why should you recommend to people to eat cottage cheese, skim milk and use the egg whites instead of the yolk? This item in the paper tells about how the ancient Egyptians learned that eating liver prevented night blindness, and it was because of the vitamin A in the liver. As the dairy council spokesman pointed out, egg yolks, whole milk, cream, cheese and butter, all contain vitamin A. Aren't you giving people the wrong advice?

Dear Reader — Thank you for sending along your clipping reporting the statement of a member of the Dairy Council.

I have never said that people should not have foods that contain vitamin A. In fact, fortified skim milk, also marketed by dairy companies, is an excellent source of vitamin A, and it is just as good as any other vitamin A for prevention of night blindness. As the news story points out, dark green and yellow vegetables are also good sources — which include carrots.

Incidentally, margarine is also enriched with vitamin A and contains the same amount found in retail sources of butter. And you don't need a lot of fat to absorb vitamin A. Although it has been learned that it is not as dependent upon fat for absorption through the intestinal wall as was thought. In fact, certain water soluble preparations are more likely to be absorbed than vitamin A given in oil.

So, I am all for getting adequate amounts of vitamin A, but I would prefer that people would get their vitamin A from foods low in fat and particularly low in saturated fat. That also is the opinion of most reputable investigators of the problem of coronary artery disease and its causes.

Dear Dr. Lamb — I have heard from many different people that too much milk is not good for me. I have acquired a taste for milk this past year, and I drink at least a half gallon a day. They also tell me it is fattening, but I am 26 years old and I have never weighed more than 110 pounds, even though I drink so much milk. Could you tell me if milk can be harmful in this amount?

Dear Reader — Some people cannot tolerate milk well and will have digestive problems with it. Since you seem not to have any complaints, this doesn't apply to you. Young men in particular should guard against too much fat in the diet and particularly too much saturated fat, the principal fat found in whole milk and butter. It is also abundant in beef and most mammal meat. However, there is no reason they can't drink fortified skim milk, and I recommend that they do.

Young women are protected from heart and vascular disease, and limiting fat is usually less important in their case. Of course, milk is fattening, and so are all foods if you eat enough. I doubt it is going to harm you at all, but perhaps you would be smart to acquire a taste for fortified skim milk instead of whole milk, then you can continue to enjoy it the rest of your life without worrying about the fat in it.

Carpenter builds his own coffin

WEST HAMLIN, W. Va. (AP) — When Albert Adkins leaves this world, he's made certain the trip will be made in style and comfort.

Although Adkins knows that you can't take it with you, the 85-year-old carpenter has seen to it that he knows what he'll be going in. In his basement is a gleaming coffin he personally designed and built.

"I keep it right here in the house," says the spry octogenarian. "It really doesn't bother me or the missus. It would be foolish to pretend that I wasn't going to die someday now, wouldn't it? To me, it's not like I'm waiting to go. It's just that I wanted to be ready."

Adkins has always lived among the surrounding hills and has worked at many jobs, including stints as a coal miner, railroad worker and gas well driller. But carpentry is his pride and joy.

"There is strength and pride in my work," he says. "So I know it is the very best." His masterpiece sits under a dust cover. Built of the finest hardwoods, it has been lined until it fairly glows. The lining is handstitched.

"Did the lining myself," says Adkins. "I placed every tuck, trim and stitch in it and when the time comes I know that I'll have this to go in style."

Adkins said the casket has no particular design.

"I don't make things that are any certain style," he said. "I just make them like I think they ought to be. The only thing is that they have to be good because they reflect me. Anything a man does is a part of himself and I only want to make something that will make me feel I've done my best."

Two Women GIs in field exercises

ANSBACH, Germany (AP) — The U.S. 1st Infantry Division brought 11,000 men, two women and one evening gown to West Germany for field training exercises.

The evening gown belongs to Lt. Gene Thornton, 23, of Middletown, Del., a 5-foot-5, 117-pound member of the Women's Army Corps.

"I brought the gown along in my footlocker, just in case," she said.

"My real name is Eugenia, for my father, Eugene. I am the first ever in my family to go overseas, except for a couple of distant cousins in World War II. They did not come back."

She said the nickname "Gene" helps when she signs Army correspondence.

"The people who get the letters think I am a man and it gets better results," she said.

Pfc. Connie Kalvick, 19, 5-2 and about 120 pounds, is the other 1st Division WAC who came here wearing combat gear and a fatigue uniform. She is from Minot, N.D.

Both she and Lt. Thornton have been in the Army since the beginning of this year. Pfc. Kalvick will serve for two years and the lieutenant for three years.

Lt. Thornton was commissioned a second lieutenant after being graduated from Washington College in Delaware in 1972, a drama major in liberal arts.

Her father is a banker and her mother a teacher.

She joined the Army, she said in an interview, because, "I didn't think there was much happening at home."

The airlift that brought the two women to Germany came from Ft. Riley, Kan., home station for the 1st Division.

Graduate

Marine Pvt. Marvin D. Schumaker, son of Mr. and Mrs. John F. Schumaker, Route 3, has completed basic training at the Marine Corps Recruit Depot in San Diego. He is a graduate of Smith-Cotton High School.

New town center is built on stilts

DOVER, England (AP) — They're spending an extra $250,000 to put the greater part of a $12½ million new town center here on seven-foot stilts to keep it clear of an ancient Norman Church. But the public won't be able to see the saved remains.

In 1971 a by-pass road at this old port of Dover, whose famed white cliffs are only 22 miles from France, was hiked six feet to preserve a second-century Roman fort.

Now a large part of a new office and shopping complex is to go up on delicately placed, thin concrete pillars over the buried church, but the church will not be excavated. The money is being spent just in case it should be decided in the distant future to pull down the center and carry out full-scale excavations.

Said architect Don Dyke-Wells, "It is being done so that, if and when these buildings are demolished, the church will have been preserved undamaged."

Also stored for posterity, beneath some 43 shops, four stores, two office blocks, covered market and a 600-car parking lot, is another Roman fort, with an 11-room bathhouse complete with underfloor central heating, and a Saxon town.

The Dover council is to pay for a museum to be made out of the one piece that will remain exposed, a Roman villa known as the "Painted House" because of its brightly patterned walls. Shoppers will be able to view it and its contents from a gallery.

The average shower consumes 20 to 30 gallons of water while a tub bath uses 30 to 40.

WORLD ALMANAC
FACTS

Count Casimir Pulaski was a Polish military commander who became a brigadier general in the Continental Army and served at the battles of Brandywine and Germantown in Pennsylvania in 1777. The World Almanac says Pulaski was mortally wounded while leading a French and American cavalry charge during the siege of Savannah in 1779.

Nixon's self-image deeply involved

By BRUCE BLOSSAT
NEA News Analyst

WASHINGTON — If President Nixon survives the continuing perils of Watergate and other inquiries, the nation evidently is going to witness the spectacle of a chief executive who finds in every issue a challenge which is basically a contest with himself.

Blossat
His most recent press conference was replete with references which went beyond the Middle East war and Watergate to the matter of how he was behaving as he responded to them.

It was as though he regarded each day's chores in the White House as some kind of aptitude test. Most typical were such comments as "the tougher it gets, the cooler I get" and "because I have been through so much, that may be one of the reasons I have what it takes."

Again and again, as so often before, the President pictured himself as a man pounded relentlessly by unfair critics, and yet as a man who could and would endure these allegedly brutal slings and "carry out to the best of my responsibility the duties I was elected to carry out last November."

But what comes through here is the portrait of a president who spends an inordinate amount of time, and hence of the American people's time, attending not specifically to those duties but to the way he is perceived as a performer.

Many public figures and political analysts have said recently that Watergate and related matters "cripple" the President. It is possible to argue that Mr. Nixon has always been crippled in his public life, in the sense that he has always been at least partly diverted from the problems at hand to a consideration of his own entanglements.

To quote once more, as I did in an earlier report, from James David Barber's broad study of presidential performance called "The Presidential Character":

"In psychological terms, Nixon substitutes technique for value. His energies are taken up with the struggle to resolve certain fairly continuous conflicts among (his own) character forces."

"Viewing Nixon as self-monitor and self-manager highlights his search for signs that he is performing correctly. . . Nixon is seen as a man on the run, watching himself run, criticizing his form as he runs. He TENDS himself."

Barber's thesis may be contentious, but the President's public utterances — over the years and not just in the extraordinary heat of 1973 — make it at least partly supportable.

To the extent this is so, to the degree Mr. Nixon devotes himself to his personal entanglement with problems rather than simply the problems themselves, he can be judged a waster of precious White House hours and a part-time performer.

This leaves us with the ironic circumstances of living with a president who we are told works all the time and allows himself little or no fun, but who manages nevertheless to apportion too little of his day to the public's business.

Assuredly, the President deals in fact with the Middle East war, with Watergate, with China and the Soviet Union and nuclear arms control. But the evidence is strong that his prime business is Richard Nixon.

Carl Rowan

The two faces of Mr. Nixon

WASHINGTON — Poor Richard Nixon! He must spend a lot of hours these days wondering how it is he can make Leonid Brezhnev, Alexei Kosygin and the big, powerful Soviet Union knuckle under when he gets tough about the Middle East, but he can't seem to throw fear into a puny bunch of reporters who don't own a single atomic bomb.

Rowan
I, like millions of Americans, am prepared to accept his contention that when the Russians tried to pull a fast one in the Middle East Mr. Nixon frustrated them by a believable show of toughness.

But even before you can give the President credit for this, you see the going getting tough on domestic issues, and you see Richard Nixon losing his cool. You see a frightening outburst of paranoia. It is California (1962) revisited, and a sore loser is still wailing about how the press is kicking Richard Nixon around.

Only this time Nixon sees himself victimized by "vicious, outrageous, distorted reporting. . . I'm not blaming anybody for that. . . frantic, hysterical reporting." He portrays the television networks as deliberately carrying stories of his pal Bebe Rebozo setting up a million-dollar trust fund for him "when they knew it was untrue."

But Richard Nixon wants Bob Pierpoint of CBS and the rest of the nation to know that he isn't angry at the press because "one can only be angry with those he respects."

When he is and has been surrounded by tax-evaders, burglars, perjurers, and by others accused of bribes, extortion, conspiracy, obstruction of justice and assorted crimes, what state of mentality makes the President believe that the American people are now prepared to believe that all his troubles spring from an "unmerciful assault" by an unfair press?

The press did not accept $100,000 in cash from Howard Hughes and keep it for three years. Mr. Nixon's closest crony, Rebozo, did that. The President asks the nation to think of Rebozo as showing "very good judgment" and as being "a totally honest man." And he obviously detests Archibald Cox for probing into the Rebozo affair and the press for writing about it.

Mr. Nixon may soon regret that blanket endorsement of Rebozo, for the very press he despises may produce a few more reports about Rebozo's financial manipulations — some, perhaps, that benefited Richard M. Nixon.

But, certainly in the short run, the President's unprecedented tirade against the press is not what was important about that Friday press conference. Almost every reporter in the room will be chronicling the deeds and misdeeds of other chiefs of state long after Mr. Nixon has resigned, been impeached or simply faded away.

The points that emerge from all the self-serving rhetoric are these:

✓ Mr. Nixon thinks the outlook for permanent peace in the Middle East is the best it has been for 20 years. Since the chances have been nil for 20 years, that is saying precisely nothing.

✓ A new special Watergate prosecutor will be named this week and he will have "independence . . . total cooperation from the executive branch." But Mr. Nixon remains emphatic that he will "not provide presidential documents to a special prosecutor"; he doesn't expect a new prosecutor to file any suits against the President of the United States (which negates independence, unless they find a special prosecutor who isn't yet aware that the President is a prime suspect); and Mr. Nixon doesn't want Congress to empower Judge John J. Sirica to name a prosecutor the President cannot fire.

That was the heart of the press conference. All the rest was verbal gymnastics by a deeply troubled President who kept trying to laugh at comments he knew no one else on earth would consider funny. (Brezhnev would know how to solve his problems with the press, hah, hah.)

Mr. Nixon said "peace in the world" would be the major legacy of his administration. He could be right. For what he has done regarding China, Russia, the Middle East (and some would add Indochina) is of laudable proportion. But that won't be the Nixon legacy, because there is a devious, vindictive, paranoid Nixon who steals the scene every time Nixon the statesman tries to take a bow.

If Richard Milhaus could just strike a truce between the two Nixons, most of America would give Richard Milhaus a peace prize — and utter a gigantic sigh of relief.

F. D. KNEIBERT
EditorSoviets also losers in the Mideast war

One of the biggest losers in the latest Mideast fighting may turn out to be the Soviet Union.

While the loss may be mainly one of face, it could have major consequences for the future Russian role in the Mideast, and even the nature of the Soviet leadership itself.

Consider the setbacks Russia has suffered in just the past two weeks.

It is now abundantly clear that the Yom Kippur Arab offensive was planned with Soviet knowledge and assistance. Russian weapons, especially sophisticated surface-to-air missiles, enabled the Egyptian army to score most of its initial gains. Also, Soviet supplies and equipment replacements were funneled into Egypt on a scale and timetable that was impossible without extensive advance planning.

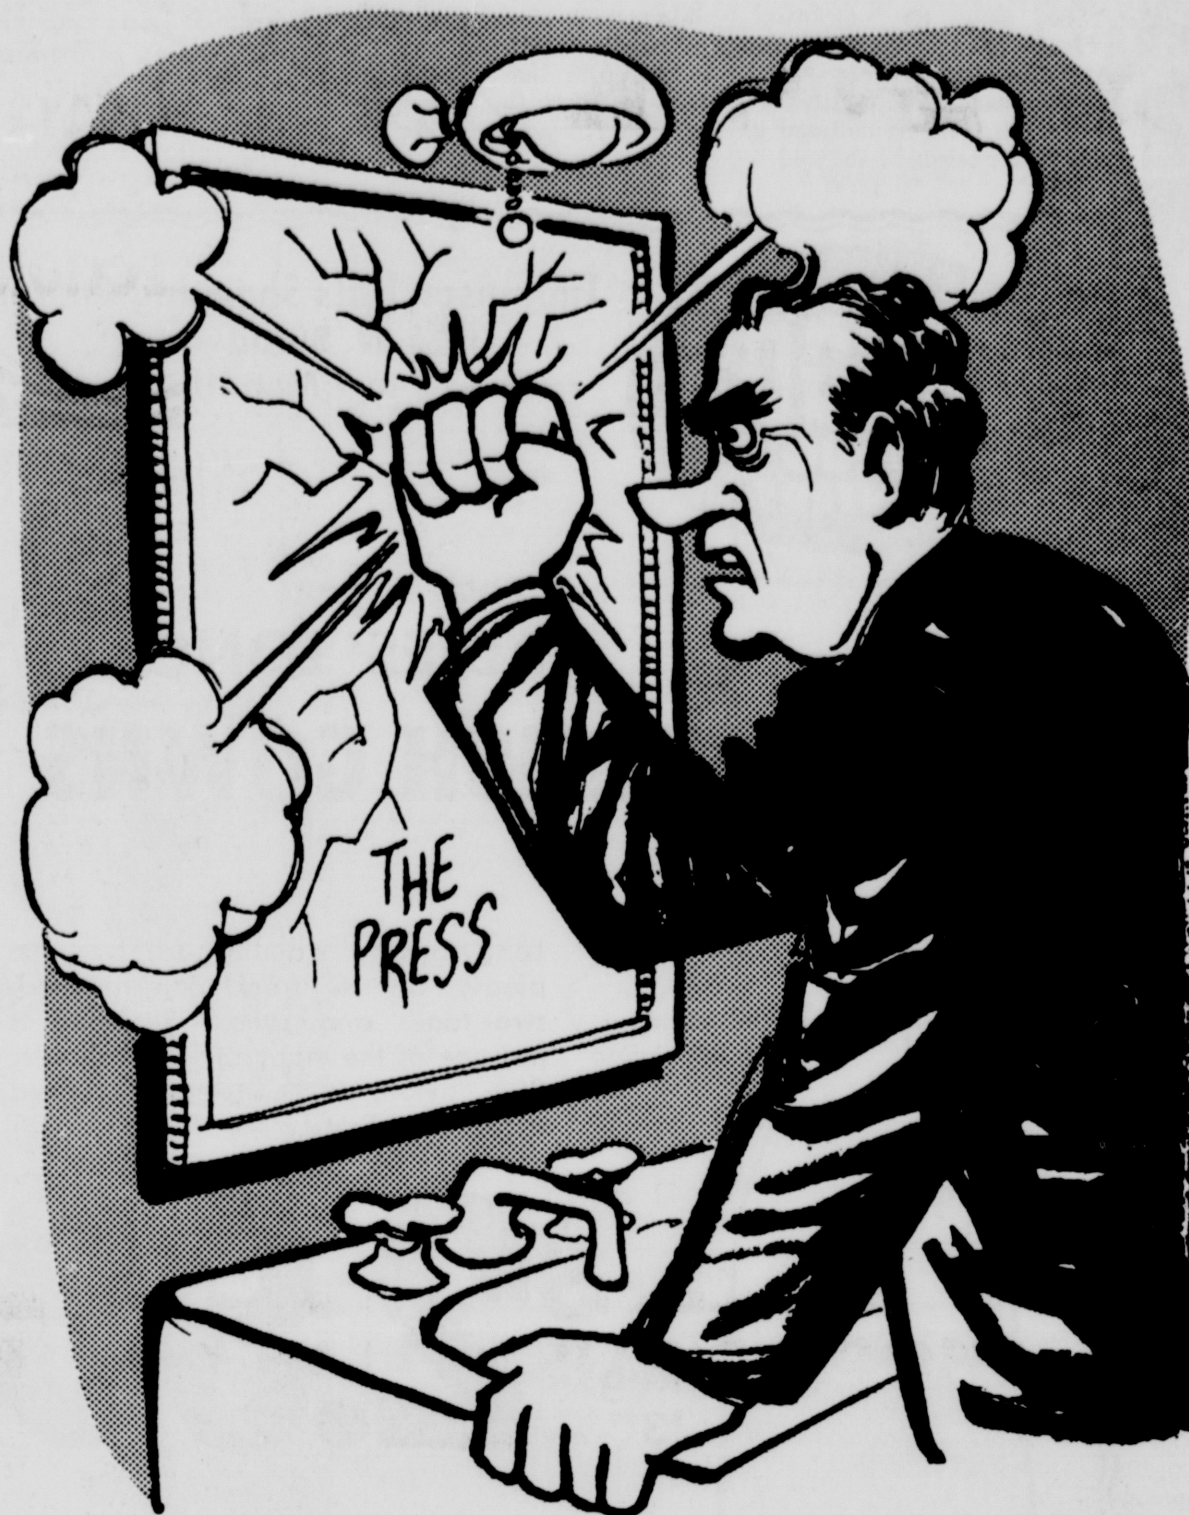

During all of this, Party Chairman Leonid Brezhnev fanned the flames by urging other Arab nations to join the war against Israel.

Once the tide of battle began to turn and Israeli forces took the offensive, the Russians prepared to play a desperate trump card to salvage their Mideast investment. Three Soviet airborne divisions were placed on "high alert" preliminary to being sent into the battle zone — in Brezhnev's words to help "enforce" the UN-ordered ceasefire.

President Nixon correctly saw through this transparent attempt to turn the battle in favor of the Arab forces, and called Mr. Brezhnev's bluff. The Soviet Union backed down, suffering its second major loss of face and prestige.

The upshot of all this is that Soviet stock in the Mideast has plunged to an all-time low. This will have far-reaching implications, perhaps involving the political future of Chairman Brezhnev himself.

"VICIOUS, MALICIOUS DISTORTION!"

Merry-go-round

Russia was behind
new Mideast war

By JACK ANDERSON

WASHINGTON — The story is now leaking out of the strained, secret diplomacy that followed the outbreak of hostilities in the Middle East.

In one secret report, the Central Intelligence Agency suggests that the Soviets actually orchestrated the Arab attack. It was part of a desperate maneuver, the CIA quotes an informed source as saying, to hang on to their beachhead in the Middle East.

Before the attack, Egypt had thrown out Soviet military advisers, tightened its ties with Saudi Arabia and shifted toward the West. Even in Syria, which had been the most Moscow-minded of the Arab powers, the Soviets had encountered growing hostility.

Other intelligence reports raise doubts about the precise Soviet role in planning the surprise attack. But the Kremlin clearly had advance knowledge that it was coming.

It has also been established that Soviet military shipments, both by air through Yugoslavia and by water through the Black Sea, started on their way before the guns began booming.

Immediately after the outbreak, President Nixon appealed to Soviet party chief Leonid Brezhnev for restraint. Both the superpowers, urged the President, should keep hands off the Middle East war.

Brezhnev argued that the Arabs had the right to recapture their lost lands and, therefore, that the Soviets couldn't withhold military supplies. Nixon responded that the United States was equally justified in helping Israel repel armed aggression.

Secretary of State Henry Kissinger stressed to Soviet Ambassador Anatoly Dobrynin that the United States was quite capable of matching Soviet shipments and maintaining the military supply balance in the Middle East.

For four days, the United States held back military shipments to Israel while Kissinger tried to persuade the Russians to exercise similar restraint. However, the Soviet tonnage not only began to pour into Egypt and Syria, but the Russians also beefed up their naval strength in the Mediterranean.

In response, the United States used its superior airlift capacity to catch up with the Soviet shipments. This apparently surprised the Soviet strategists, who had thought the United States wouldn't risk an oil cut-off to support the embattled Israelis.

Intelligence reports claim, meanwhile, that the cautious Egyptian commanders wanted to consolidate their hold on the Suez Canal's east bank but were goaded by the Russians to expand the offensive.

Brezhnev also brought personal pressure, according to one report, on Jordan's King Hussein, Morocco's King Hassan and Tunisia's President Habib Bourguiba to join in the fighting.

When the Israelis outmaneuvered the Egyptians by moving across the Suez and cutting the Egyptian supply lines, the Kremlin began showing signs of panic. Another Arab humiliation could backfire on the Soviets, whose role in the debacle could bring them more blame than praise from Arab leaders.

Suddenly, Brezhnev sent President Nixon an urgent message requesting that Kissinger come to Moscow at once to negotiate a cease-fire. Then, the Soviets, in their haste to end the fighting, wanted to rush in a joint Soviet-American force to police the cease-fire.

President Nixon rejected the idea of direct superpower involvement in the Middle East. The Soviets apparently mistook this as a delaying tactic and sent a bristling note to the President, threatening to send its own troops to the Middle East to keep the peace.

The President reacted by placing the U.S. armed forces on a military alert. Then both of the big powers wisely backed away from a confrontation.

GRIZZLY REPORT: A secret Interior Department study warns that the nation's grizzly bear population is in danger of extinction because their food supply has been suddenly closed down.

In Yellowstone National Park, the last major stronghold of the big beasts, the grizzlies have fed for years on campers' garbage. Six years ago, a study urged that the dumps be closed gradually so the bears would return to their old eating habits in the wild.

Instead, the National Park Service has shut down the dumps abruptly, thus driving the panicky bears into campsites and off-park lands, where they have been shot.

The new secret study, done by Interior consultants, warns: "The grizzly bear population in Yellowstone Park and surrounding areas has declined rapidly and will continue to do so if conditions remain unaltered."

"Dirty tricks or treat!"

Rescued eagle

A bird specialist holds a rare Spanish imperial eagle that was mysteriously kidnaped from a bird preserve in Spain. The 12-pound, two-foot-high bird, one of only 100 of its species, was captured by state agents in California who thought they were chasing the owners of an illegal hawk. The bird was released by the pursued car and agents rescued it. The bird will be sent back to its 5,000-acre preserve in Spain. (UPI)

Agronomy specialist is chosen

(Democrat-Capital Service)

CLINTON — David Lindell will begin work here Thursday as the new Show-Me Area's agronomy specialist, according to C. W. Browning, area director.

Lindell comes here from the Ohio Cooperative Extension Service, where he was employed as an agronomist since 1970, serving 18 counties.

A native of Kansas, he attended Kansas State University and holds B.S. and M.S. degrees. He attended graduate school at the University of Nebraska, Lincoln, where he completed his Ph.D. degree in field studies related to crop nutrition and production.

According to Browning, Lindell will be responsible for the agronomy education program in the Show-Me Area, as well as the soil testing program. He and his wife have two sons, John and Carl, and will make their home here.

Knob Noster man is given district title

(Democrat-Capital Service)

KNOB NOSTER — Gerald Evans has been installed as lieutenant governor of the Missouri District of Optimist International. The appointment came at a quarterly meeting of the district board of directors in Jefferson City.

Evans will serve Zone 8, which includes Optimist Clubs in Knob Noster, Sedalia, Warrensburg, Holden, Marshall and Carrollton. He has served as president of the club here and is an industrial arts instructor and student council sponsor at Warrensburg R-VI High School.

Officers of the Knob Noster club who attended the district meeting were Bob Hyler, president; Jim Wilkins, vice-president; and Mike Gudde, secretary-treasurer.

Student reports

Mike Hunnell, 14, son of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Hunnell, 619 West Third, was recently named to the honor roll at Wentworth Military Academy, Lexington, for his accumulative grades during his past ninth grade term.

There are about 152,000 retail stores in Canada.

Ann Landers

She hasn't nerve to send letter

Dear Ann Landers: I am asking you to print this letter to my mother-in-law because I haven't the nerve to say it — or even send it.

Dear Mom: I love you because you have been good to me, but you did a lousy job of raising your son.

I knew it before I married him so I shouldn't complain, but here's the way it is: When he didn't want to go to school you let him stay home. When he didn't want to go to work, you covered up for him and lied to his boss. He never knew what it was to accept responsibility for himself because you always accepted it for him.

When we married I had a good job, so he quit his. Finally I quit working so he HAD to go to work. He's been steadily employed ever since.

He didn't believe in God because you decided not to "force" religion on him. You decided to wait until he was old enough to choose his own religion.

This past year he has begun to shape up into a fine human being, something I knew was buried down there. But you left an awful lot of work for me. Twenty-eight is pretty late to start growing up. But I'm sure he'll make it now and I'll help him, because we love each other. — Your Daughter-in-Law

Dear Daughter-in-law: Granted, you married a mess — and his mother probably helped mess him up. But what do you expect her to do about it NOW? The real value of your letter is for young mothers who are raising their children. The lesson here is for them.

Dear Ann Landers: I was amused by the column in which you quoted the violinist Nathan Milstein's explanation for the fact that a great many of the world's finest violinists were Jewish. He said when the Jews were run out of one country after another on short notice it was easier to grab a violin than a piano.

Here's an anecdote about another pushed-around minority. A new singing star, Ellierine Harding, who was raised in the black ghetto of Newark with Sarah Vaughan, was asked if there was anything special about that neighborhood which produced outstanding singers. "I guess there is," Ellierine said. "A person can develop strong vocal cords just yelling for help." — Ann Fan In New Rochelle

Dear Fan: Lovely.

Dear Ann Landers: Aren't you tired of cliches — those canned things people say to each other out of habit? For example, the question, "How are you?" Most people don't give a darn how you are.

A friend of mine decided to do something about it. He had some cards printed up and when people asked him how he was he handed them one.

The card read:

Items for insight into American economy listed

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP) — What follows is a compilation of items that, reflected upon, may provide some insight into the condition of the American economy.

—The fuel shortage didn't erupt in the faces of unsuspecting officials, although it might appear that way. Government and industry researchers saw the problem developing a decade ago, but almost no coordinated effort was made to face it.

Same with food. Officials knew that while population was increasing, and that people the world over were improving their diets, the supply of food was not rising sufficiently to take care of demand.

Speaking at the Columbia Graduate School of Business a few days ago, C.W. Cook, chairman of General Foods Corp., observed:

"In 1965, President Johnson appointed a 30-man panel, called the National Commission on Food and Fiber, to make a thorough 18-month study of the subject in its broadest aspects."

"I was privileged to be a member along with topflight agribusiness economists from the academic world, farm leaders, other food processors, food retailers, and consumer representatives."

"Among other findings, our commission concluded that the trend of world demand was out—pacing supply and would continue to do so unless massive steps were taken to achieve more of a balance.

"What happened as a result? In effect, nothing!"

—True or false: The United States is a have-not nation in regard to energy resources. False. The just-published "U.S. Industrial Outlook 1974," a Commerce Department publication, might bolster your confidence:

"It is reassuring that this country has almost unlimited energy potential in the form of coal and oil shale. More than half of the world's total reserves of coal are within the United States, and recoverable resources of oil shale are of roughly equal magnitude."

It adds that "large-scale" additions to the energy supply will come from solar and geothermal sources in the 1990s, and that nuclear fusion "could possibly supply energy indefinitely for a substantial part of the world's population."

—Many corporations are enjoying the most profitable year in their history, but that doesn't mean they're happy.

One after another they've boasted to stockholders and brokers about record high profits and then, lest the government was listening, added that price relief was necessary if profitability was to continue.

Union Carbide, for example,

"expects the best year in the corporation's history," its chief financial officer, William Pardee, told San Francisco security analysts this week.

That was half the story. Another officer then cautioned that rising costs of hydrocarbon feedstock and energy would require relief from price restrictions on its products now imposed by Phase 4.

—Pay raises to organized labor in this year of government controls contributed less to corporate stress, although they may have contributed a good deal to strained relations between labor and the administration.

The Labor Department reported that wage-benefit increases in major contract settlements for the first nine months dropped to 6.3 per cent over the life of contract from 7.4 per cent for the entire year 1972.

—There is an element that always believes Americans are into credit over their heads, despite the consistent repayment of that debt by borrowers. Now they have something substantial to think about.

Mortgage loan delinquencies, that is, seems to be edging higher. It might be too early to draw any conclusion other than statistical aberration, but the rate for September rose to 87 of one per cent, highest since February, and one of the highest for any month in the past five years.

Wee figure

Four-month-old Jeremy Johnson cuts a wee figure against two huge pumpkins as his sister, Tammy, prepares to cut a jack o'lantern. Mrs. Norm Johnson, Albion, Mich., said she started the pumpkin plants indoors. When transplanted outdoors, each of the plants was allowed a 400-square-foot growing area. She then picked off all but one blossom on each plant. The smaller pumpkin weighed 245 pounds, the larger 275 pounds. (UPI)

Meir enroute to U.S. for talks with Nixon

TEL AVIV (AP) — Premier Golda Meir left Wednesday for the United States to talk with President Nixon about Israel's cease-fire with Egypt and Syria and the prospects for peace negotiations with the Arabs.

"There are naturally problems that have to be discussed," she said, but "I am leaving with the true feeling that they will be discussed in friendship."

Maj. Gen. Aharov Yariv, the assistant chief of staff, accompanied Mrs. Meir, and they traveled on a jumbo jet of El Al, the Israeli airline, that was filled with commercial passengers.

The premier is sure to thank the President for the massive American shipments of arms. But she is also likely to complain about U.S. pressures on Israel that have put her government on the spot at home and could cost her Labor party votes in the elections two months away.

Mrs. Meir, who last visited

Washington eight months ago, will spend three or four days in the U.S. capital, her spokesman said. Her travel plans are kept secret for security reasons and her itinerary is not yet final.

She is expected to reiterate to the President three basic demands of Israeli policy: face-to-face talks, with the Arabs leading to a signed peace treaty, retention of key pieces of territory seized by Israel in 1967, and no change in the status of all of Jerusalem as Israel's capital.

But her top priority probably will be a discussion of the current cease-fire, which Israel says Washington forced it to accept at a moment of military strength.

The Israelis have indicated that to obtain their agreement to the cease-fire, the Americans and the Soviets promised to get the Egyptians to abide by all the agreement's provisions.

But Israel claims the Egyptians have failed to live up to the pact's spirit by going slow on a prisoner of war exchange, continuing a naval blockade in the Red Sea and failing to halt shooting incidents.

Israeli sources say the United States also pressured Mrs. Meir's government to allow food, water and medical supplies to pass through the Israeli lines to the Egyptian 3rd Army, stranded in the Sinai desert.

The Israeli government has come in for strong criticism at home for allowing the supplies through, particularly before captured Israelis are released or their identities supplied by the Arabs.

Reports from Washington indicated the U.S. government was pressing Israel to give up the Egyptian territory on the west bank of the Suez Canal that it seized on Oct. 22-23 between the two cease-fire orders. That retreat would free the Egyptian 3rd Army from its encirclement.

But Mrs. Meir is known as a tough negotiator, and the political climate at home may make her even tougher in this meeting with Nixon.

Suit against warden tossed out of court

KANSAS CITY, Kan. (AP) — A group of inmates refused to agree to a federal judge's procedural demand and as a result their suit against Warden Loren Daggett of the U.S. Penitentiary, Leavenworth, Kan., was tossed out of court.

Fourteen inmates were brought from Leavenworth to U.S. District Court here Tuesday for an evidentiary hearing before Judge Wesley E. Brown. Two others, formerly inmates at Leavenworth but transferred after disturbances in July, were brought here from the federal penitentiary at Marion, Ill.

The 16, restricted by manacles, waist chains and leg irons, were under the constant surveillance of 13 officers armed with shotguns, rifles and snub-nosed carbines.

Judge Brown said no more than four at a time would be permitted in his courtroom. However, the inmates were steadfast in their insistence to appear en masse. They never entered the courtroom.

Judge Brown, after trying for about four hours to get the inmates to comply with his order, dismissed their lawsuit.

Five attorneys representing the inmates said they would appeal.

The suit was over living conditions at the penitentiary's maximum security unit—"the hole," inmates call it—where a majority of the plaintiffs were confined as late as early Tuesday. They also complained about the lack of due process afforded them.

Trouble started early in the day when at least four inmates reportedly refused to submit to rectal searches for such items as pick weapons, drugs or picklocks. Henry Lopez, a deputy marshal, said the four had to be wrestled to the ground.

"No one likes to have that done to them," Warden Daggett said, "but it is necessary."

After Judge Brown dismissed the suit, the inmates were returned by bus to Leavenworth. The two from Marion were placed temporarily in the Wyandotte County jail here.

Granny hitchhikes to college daily

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — Elaine Camfield, a 72-year-old grandmother, hitchhikes eight miles to classes every day.

She's convinced she can earn a college degree while thumbing rides with her best "old lady's smile."

"I've got it down to a science," says the communications major at Florida Technological University. The technique has worked for two years already.

Mrs. Camfield, who figures she has "30 years of living yet," each day rides a bus to a busy Orlando intersection. "Then I walk up to a car and request a ride the remaining eight miles," she said.

Last week, while standing at her favorite intersection, she smiled at the wrong car. An Orange County sheriff's deputy told her she'd have to find a new spot where she wouldn't disrupt traffic.

A former nurse and parttime tutor, she says she took to hitchhiking when bus transportation proved inadequate but has learned a lot about people in her two years.

"It gives you a terrific perspective about people," she said.

She said she was once refused a ride by a man holding a gun on her while she inquired.

"I had a minister change his mind about picking up hitchhikers," she said of one ride. "He even did a sermon about me."

Mrs. Camfield left college to get married years ago and doesn't know when she will complete her degree requirements. "I always get off on special projects which aren't for course credit," she said.

For young people, Mrs. Camfield says, "College is like hors d'oeuvres . . . for me it's like after-dinner coffee and I have a lot of sipping to do."

Firing of Cox doubled impeachment backers

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon's firing of special Watergate prosecutor Archibald Cox doubled the number of persons calling for impeachment, according to a poll conducted by Rep. Jerry Litton, D-Mo., in his district.

Litton said Tuesday his survey indicated the dismissal of Cox also reduced the number of constituents who approve of the President's performance and increased the number disenchanted with politicians and pessimistic about the future.

The freshman Democrat said the conclusions were based on questionnaires sent to nearly 200,000 households in his northern Missouri district two weeks before Cox was fired. The answers were returned before and after the firing.

Litton said the number of persons advocating impeaching Nixon rose from 16 per cent before the firing to 32 per cent in the two days following that event.

The number who said they approved of the way the President was running his office dropped from 30.7 per cent to a low of 21 per cent before edging up to 22 per cent.

In answer to another question, 70 per cent of those polled said they thought most public officials were not interested in the problems of the average man before the firing. But Litton said that figure rose to 73 per cent afterward.

Before the firing, 61 per cent said they believed the lot of the average citizen was getting worse instead of better. Within two days after Cox was ousted, the figure increased to 68 per cent before leveling off at 64 per cent.

Prior to the Cox announcement, 78 per cent of those answering the questionnaire replied affirmatively to the statement, "these days a person really doesn't know who he can count on." The figure increased to 80 per cent after the firing and then dropped to 79 per cent.

Death cause may not be ascertained

POINT LOOKOUT, Mo. (AP) — The advanced deterioration of their bodies might make it impossible to ascertain the cause of death of two youths who had been missing since Oct. 12, Taney County Prosecuting Atty. Gary W. Allman says.

A workman found the bodies Monday of Daniel M. Deeds, 20, Billings, Mo., and Michael Frisinger, 18, Joplin, Mo., in Lake Honor at the School of the Ozarks. It was estimated the bodies had been in the water about two weeks.

Allman said, however, physical inspections by a pathologist at Springfield and X rays revealed no signs of criminal assault, such as broken bones, knife wounds or bullet wounds.

Sheriff Chuck Keithley of Taney County said no foul play was suspected in their deaths. Neither of the youths was a student at the School of the Ozarks. Both worked as tour guides in the nearby Silver Dollar City tourist attraction.

Attorneys contend judge, prosecutors just as guilty

CHICAGO (AP) — Attorneys for the seven defendants and two lawyers in the Chicago riot conspiracy case say the government should drop contempt charges against them or put Judge Julius J. Hoffman and the prosecutors on trial as well.

At the conclusion of the government's case in a contempt trial Tuesday, attorneys for the seven defendants and their lawyers, William M. Kunstler and Leonard I. Weinglass, said the only evidence — the 23,000-page conspiracy trial transcript — was insufficient to prove contempt.

Defense attorney Morton Stavis of New York City argued that disorders during the 4½-month trial before Hoffman in U.S. District Court stemmed from the judge's conduct at the outset of the case.

Hoffman ordered four defense lawyers jailed the first day of the trial and later had an eighth defendant, Black Panther leader Bobby Seale, gagged in the courtroom. Seale's case later was severed from those of the other seven.

Stavis accused Hoffman of setting the tone for the often-chaotic trial with "a steady erosion of the standards of conduct through a pattern of insults, harassment and the most petty kind of unfairness."

At the end of the trial in February 1970, Hoffman accused the seven defendants and two lawyers of committing 175 acts of contempt. All but 52 of the citations have been dropped.

The 7th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals reversed the citations and returned the charges to District Court for trial. The case was assigned to U.S. District Judge Edward T. Gignoux of Portland, Maine.

Weinglass told Gignoux Tuesday that unless Hoffman and the prosecutors, former U.S. District Atty. Thomas A. Foran and his assistant, Richard Schultz, are also charged with contempt, the current trial will violate the fairness doctrine of the equal protection section of the U.S. Constitution.

Weinglass argued that Hoffman, Foran and Schultz have in effect already been judged guilty of contempt by the appeals court. In sending the case back to the District Court, the appeals panel criticized all three.

Women outnumber the men in Greece

By PHILIP DOPOULOS
Associated Press Writer

ATHENS (AP) — According to the latest statistics, Greece is under the domination of women, breaking a centuries-old male stranglehold.

The most recent census showed that there were 208,519 more women in the country. Of a total population of 8,768,641 people, there were 4,488,580 women and 4,280,061 men. Out of each 100 citizens, 51 were women and 49 men.

The figures are in the recently released 1972 edition of the national statistics bulletin which analyzes the country's life and activity in numbers.

The first census in Greece's modern history took place in 1828 when the population totaled 753,400. The most recent one took place in March 1971 and put the population at 8,768,641 and the density at 67.1 persons per square kilometer compared with 39.1 persons per square kilometer, 50 years ago.

In 1971 the census also disclosed that the birth rate is decreasing to such an extent that authorities are beginning to worry.

The days when a Greek family had six, eight or 10 children are no more. Modern Greek families have one or two children and are staunch advocates of family planning despite the official attitude of the orthodox church of Greece.

In 1964 there were 153,109 births, and in 1971, births had dropped to 141,126.

In order to encourage parents to have more children, the Greek government in 1972 decreed a bonus to families who have three or more children of $17 per child. But gynecologists report that despite the husband's desire to have more children, their wives are undergoing abortions — many of them more than one.

Officials estimated that in 1971, 80 per cent of mothers were between 20 and 34 years old. Some 3,385 women, aged between 40 and 50, also gave birth in the same year. There were also 11,918 mothers between 15 to 19-years old and 85 were younger than 15.

The statistics bulletin also disclosed that women in Greece were living longer than men.

So much salt draws tourists

BUCHAREST, Romania (AP) — At Slanic in the Carpathian Mountains north of here, a sparkling white mountain of salt rises among the other peaks.

The mountain was pushed up in a convulsion after receding seas left deposits of salt millions of years ago. The Carpathians are lined with underground salt deposits.

The salt mountain has been mined since the 17th century and is now visited by tourists. Rain has eroded the sides into fantastic shapes and patterns. A lake by the mountain is enclosed in salt walls which resemble colored glass or marble.

Gallup Poll indicates Nixon impeachment is not favored

PRINCETON, N.J. (AP) — The Gallup Poll says 55 per cent of those questioned in a random telephone survey immediately after President Nixon's news conference last Friday felt Nixon should not be compelled to leave the presidency.

The Gallup organization also said Tuesday that 62 per cent of the 623 persons questioned felt it would not be in the best interest of the country for Nixon to resign.

However, 55 per cent of those questioned had "not very much" or no confidence in the Nixon administration, and 53 per cent of those who heard the President's news conference found Nixon's responses on Watergate unconvincing, the poll reported.

Responding to another question in the poll, 63 per cent said Rep. Gerald R. Ford, R-Mich., should be confirmed now as vice president. Seventeen per cent said they did not favor it, now and 20 per cent had no opinion.

The Gallup organization said that, because of the small size of the sampling, the responses on impeachment could not be compared fairly with previous surveys. It said the question of resignation hadn't been raised in its previous polls.

The respondents were asked: "Do you think President Nixon should be impeached and compelled to leave the presidency or not?"

In addition to the 55 per cent who replied he should not, 28 per cent that he should and 17 per cent had no opinion.

On whether it would be in the best interest of the country for Nixon to resign, the 62 per cent who said it would not were opposed by 28 per cent who thought his resignation would be in the best interests of the country. Ten per cent had no opinion.

Those questioned also were asked: "How much confidence do you have in the Nixon administration: A great deal, a fair amount, not very much or none at all?"

Silent screen star feels 'taste' lacking

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. (AP) — "As an American, I am against censorship of any kind," remarked Lillian Gish, one of the great stars of the silent screen. She added wistfully, "But I do wish we could do something about taste."

Miss Gish, the fragile beauty of "Birth of a Nation," "Broken Blossoms" and a host of other silent classics, was paying a return visit to the Hollywood she first saw exactly 60 years ago. She reminisced about the past, particularly her proud association with D. W. Griffith, but she also talked about present-day films.

"Ugliness disturbs me," she commented, "and much of what is shown on the screen is ugly. Not only in exposure of the human body. I also mean the ugliness of violence. To me, violence is just as offensive as nudity."

"Although I do not approve of censorship, I wish there were some way to impose taste on the people who make films. It's not that I mind the portrayal of sex in movies, but sex should be beautiful, an expression of human love. But too often it is made to seem ugly."

A youthful 77, Miss Gish is in the middle of a tour of 30 cities in seven weeks to call attention to her new book, "Dorothy and Lillian Gish," a $20 family album of the rich careers of the two sisters. She added a historical perspective on the film world's flirtation with obscenity.

"I spent two years in Italy, and I had time to learn all about their art. The Italians in the Renaissance went through what our film makers seem to be going through today. Nudity had not been seen before, and at first they exploited it. But then they learned to portray the human body with beauty."

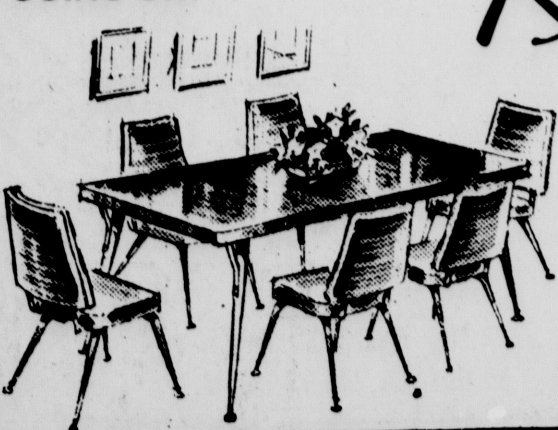

"I say to today's movie makers: Do what you will—but do it beautifully."

Dampened spirit

A rainy autumn day isn't all that bad, especially when a guy has a bubble umbrella, a thumb and a parade to get his mind off the weather. The dampened occasion was Alma College's recent homecoming at Alma, Mich. The little fellow on the curb is Bobby Stolz, four-year-old nephew of Michigan State University football coach Denny Stolz. # Crank telephone users get old-time service

By ROGER PETTERSON
Associated Press Writer

MOUTH OF SENECA, W. Va. (AP) — "Macksville," the operator answers. "What number do you want?"

"Oh, it won't do you any good to call there. I just saw her driving up toward the restaurant. Do you want me to call up there?"

Then she plugs a cord into a socket and presses a switch for the right number of rings on the party-line pay-phone at the restaurant.

It's only about a four-hour drive to the nation's capital; a super-sophisticated U.S. Navy communications station is hidden a few valleys over.

But here, in a farming area along the North Fork of the South Branch of the Potomac River there are no dial telephones, no Touch-Tone, no fancy telephones in pink or blue or yellow.

It's the North Fork Mutual Telephone Co.'s Macksville exchange (the company's only exchange), and the switchboard for more than 300 subscribers is in the living room of chief operator Gladys Richards.

North Fork Mutual is a sort of do-it-yourself, cooperative telephone company. You buy your own crank telephone (they're up to about $27), become a member of the company, and pay $15 — not a month, but a year.

Forget about repairmen in snazzy little vans. Mrs. Richards keeps a stock of spare parts; you buy them and put them on yourself. Each party line has its own president and secretary, and all the subscribers on that line are responsible for its upkeep.

The company owns the house where the switchboard has been located for 59 years, in an area that once was the town of Macksville. The house comes with the job and Mrs. Richards, and her two assistants, are expected to man the switchboard 24 hours a day.

Her biggest problem is tourists who, never having seen a pay telephone with a crank instead of a dial, "call the switchboard in the middle of the night just to see if it works."

The board's been left unmanned only once — for 15 minutes — in the five years Mrs. Richards has been here. That was in the middle of the night when some lines were down and she drove out to tell someone of a death in the family.

"It's just like a family," she says, "we're (the operators) used like a family. If someone needs people to help thresh, they call and ask us to help find people."

Unlike operators in bigger telephone systems, Mrs. Richards and her two helpers have time to chat a bit, to tell a caller that someone isn't home to get a call, or where someone might be reached. The operator faces a living room window with a view of the main highway, and she knows who's gone off in what direction.

City long-distance operators, who are not supposed to chat or pass on messages, exasperate Mrs. Richards. Some cut in on the line when she starts to say the called party isn't home and tell her she couldn't "give out that information unless it's a person-to-person call."

She also has trouble with operators who don't understand that not everyone has a dial telephone and that, in some places in the world, an operator has to do everything.

The old-fashioned way has its disadvantages, such as party lines, she says, but the human element and cheap cost make up for it.

This is one of only three independent telephone companies in the Mountain State still operating with a manual switchboard. But in a couple of years there will be none.

The Daybrook Telephone Co. in rural Monongalia County has been approved for a loan under the federal Rural Electrification Act and construction is beginning this fall on a modern dial system.

A similar loan is in the works for North Fork Mutual and the Circleville Mutual Telephone Co., just south of here along the same valley. The two will be combined into the Spruce Knob-Seneca Rocks Telephone Co., with a modern exchange at the town of Riverton.

An official of the Bell System's Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co., who deals with the small independent companies said the old exchanges "are nice, they're cute, but they just don't do the job." "It's dying, it's going to end," Macksville and Circleville, he said, will be dial systems "by 1975."

The Sedalia Scottish Rite Club will hold a prospect dinner at the Masonic Temple, Broadway and Missouri on Nov. 1, Thursday evening at 6:30 P.M. All Scottish Rite Masons and their wives are urged to attend. Charge $1.50 per member. Prospects and their wives free. Marion E. Landon, Pres. Bruce McCully, Sec'y.

Wayne Newton changed images

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — "It's difficult to be a kid at 31," said Wayne Newton, explaining why a few years ago he began revising his first edition of himself.

"The old Wayne Newton conjures up an image of a heavier, shorter guy who was almost a character I was doing, it was an act I had done so long," he said by telephone from Las Vegas, where he has become a fixture at hotels like The Sands.

Wayne Newton No. 1 was a chubby, short-haired, baby faced, all American-boy who sang in a high-pitched voice that undermined his size. He directed his considerable talents into schmaltzy songs like "Danke Shane" and "Red Roses for a Blue Lady."

Then, Newton said, "I decided I was going to grow up, stop being so naive."

But a change of image also involved work.

He quit eating long enough to lose 90 pounds from his 6-foot-3 frame. "I have energy I never had before. I feel great."

He married a 5-foot-3 Japanese beauty named Elaine.

Marrying Elaine six years ago wasn't part of the master plan to convert Wayne Newton from what he called personality into person, but he said it served notice he meant to be

"the Wayne Newton I really am."

"I knew I would probably lose some fans in the transition," he said. "But I figured the ones it took away, I probably wouldn't need anyway."

He let his hair grow and put together a nightclub act to showcase his versatility. He sings country, pop, country-pop and easy listening. He's a comedian, an actor and a bit of a dancer. He plays nine instruments.

Newton has been described by a reviewer as "a hurricane, a performer who bursts on stage with enough energy to launch a rocket. He plays more weeks a year in Vegas than any other performer and in one seven-week period appeared before 99,000 people."

Newton, who began his career in Vegas in 1959, likes to work.

"I'm in my 15th week without a night off," he said. "It becomes a way of life... when I work, I work. I don't mix work with play."

He plays on a 22-acre ranch surrounded by an eight-foot block fence. The ranch is his "show place," with tennis courts, a swimming pool and peacocks roaming on the grounds.

He also has a 218-acre spread where he raises Arabian horses.

Chocolate cheese

Pers Axelsen, a Dane who is Michigan State University's cheesemaker, holds up a chunk of a new product developed at the MSU dairy plant called chocolate cheese. The new cheese, which consists of scraps of regular cheese, cocoa, marshmallow and peanuts, reportedly supplies even more protein than the more traditional cheeses.

White House speechwriter cites two reports that aroused Nixon

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — The White House says it's considering whether to publicly pinpoint specific examples of what President Nixon calls "outrageous, vicious, distorted" reporting on television.

He didn't give specific examples or specific networks when he angrily made the charge last Friday night at his nationally televised news conference. And none has come from him yet.

But this week, on the CBS-TV "Morning News," White House speechwriter Patrick Buchanan cited two recent examples of network reporting he said aroused or justified Nixon's anger and concern.

And, in a telephone interview later, he gave a brief indication of the way the White House staff is closely monitoring network news programs for Nixon.

Buchanan, asked to cite other news reports that have angered the President, said, "Take a look at Monday night (Oct. 22) of the past week."

It was the first working day after the weekend uproar over Nixon's dismissal of special Watergate prosecutor Archibald Cox and the resignation of Atty. Gen. Elliot L. Richardson, who resigned rather than carry out Nixon's orders to fire Cox.

"There were two defenses of Nixon — Anne Armstrong and Sen. Gurney," he said, referring to the presidential counselor and the GOP senator from Florida, respectively.

"And on each of the three networks they had Mr. Bork (Acting Atty. Gen. Robert Bork), but in two of those Mr. Bork was portrayed in a negative light."

"I think this type of thing would argue the case for distortion, okay?"

Buchanan, who didn't identify the two networks he said adversely reported Bork's story, was asked to list the 19 separate attacks he said had been made on Nixon during the news shows.

"You get three by Meany on all three networks. Inouye was on all three networks," he said, referring to reports from the AFL-CIO's convention that day in Miami Beach, Fla.

At that convention, AFL-CIO President George Meany called on Nixon to resign or be impeached. Sen. Daniel Inouye, D-Hawaii, also speaking at the convention, urged Nixon to resign.

Rep. Jerome Waldie, D-Calif., who said he'd introduce a resolution calling for Nixon's impeachment was on some reports, Buchanan said.

"You can review those (program transcripts) yourself and count 'em up," Buchanan added.

Next, if events and space permit, we'll try to describe what transcripts of the Oct. 22 news shows contain.

Buchanan was asked a final question: Is the President angered at the reports per se, or is he angry at the commentary — clearly labeled as such by the networks — on the evening news shows?

"Why don't you raise that at the next press conference?" Buchanan said.

Children learning size of one million

By ROBERT C. KOTOWSKI
North Penn Reporter

LANDSDALE, Pa. (AP) — How much is a million?

Nathan Fry, 10, says it's "bigger than a bread box."

Steven Boone, 9, believes it's "more than a big box."

Jay Harrison, 9, considers it a "pretty lot, more than 9,000."

Randy Darrow, 8, explains a million is actually "more than a lot, and a lot is too much," while 9-year-old Nadia Clarn calls it like it is: "A million is a million."

These kids should know. For the past 18 months they have been collecting bottle caps trying to find out exactly how much a million is.

The 72 pupils at the Oak Park Elementary School started the project in second grade while studying small numbers.

Their teacher, Linda Potteiger, says "when we were studying second and third place numbers, we just went on. They were interested in a million, so I thought we would start collecting the bottle caps."

So far the pupils have amassed more than 400,000. They figure that if they keep up the pace they will reach the million before they finish the sixth grade.

There is, of course, the problem of where to put 400,000 bottle caps. Right now, the school is storing them in a small room, but space is running out.

Even though the pupils are a long way from their goal, the eventually must face the problem of what to do with the bottle caps.

Anybody interested?

Q — Why doesn't the city collector's office remain open between noon and 1 p.m.? The county collector's office remains open during these hours. — W.S.

A — City Collector Opal Hugelmann said her office is now open during the noon hour. She said the decision to keep the office open continuously between 8:30 a.m. and 5 p.m. was made last week.

Q — I made my little girl a costume and sent her to the Fox Theatre Halloween Movie Party Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock, with prizes for the best costumes as advertised in the Sunday paper.

When she arrived with her two little sisters, who were not dressed up, a man at the entrance was giving rubber spiders, etc., to every child who came into the theatre. Nothing was said about the prizes for the best costumes.

We then watched the movie thinking the prizes would be given after the show had ended. When we got to the entrance, after the movie, several children in costumes were standing around. Finally, the manager came to the lobby and one little girl asked him when the prizes would be given for the best costumes as advertised in the morning paper. He told this little girl that prizes had been given to everyone at the beginning of the movie, and he indicated to the rubber spider in her hand and that everyone had a best costume, even those not in costume were considered a winner to him.

To me, this was false advertising and not fair for the little ones who dressed up and sat all through the movie in full Halloween dress. — Mrs. C.B.

A — Fox Theatre manager Dave Clingman said he did not believe the advertisement was misleading "because there was no mention of the word 'contest'." He said prizes were distributed to all the children, "because we wanted all the kids to have a good time and not feel left out."

"If we had had a real contest, we would have specified it as such and advertised it much more," Clingman explained. "When we had a bikini contest several weeks ago, it was advertised as a contest and was heavily publicized. This Halloween event was not," he said.

Handicapped can use park trails

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — The Cleveland Metropolitan Park District has opened its first three paved nature trails, all designed with special aids for the handicapped.

Harold E. Wallin, chief naturalist, calls it a brand new idea.

"There's wind, trees, sun, opened spaces," Wallin says. "Whether you can see it or not, you can visualize it."

Groups which work with the blind will provide braille maps which cite things to feel, hear and smell. And there are guide wires to lead blind walkers to stakes with raised letters which are correlated with the maps.

Instead of "don't touch" warnings, the trail guide suggests that the walker "feel the furrowed bark, touch the rough texture of large sand boulders, put your arms around the massive trunk of the red oak, and breathe deeply the pine fragrances."

The 6-foot-wide paths have been made wide and flat enough to serve persons in wheelchairs or mothers with babies in strollers. They have been kept easy enough for the more easily tiring elderly.

The trails are in the Brackville, Rocky River and North Chagrin reservations.

Children's plaything

This gas chamber which was formerly used at the Colorado State Penitentiary is now a part of the playground outside the prison. Prison officials say there have been few complaints about the unusual piece of playground equipment which was used to execute 24 men between 1933 and 1955.

DU PONT LUCITE WALL PAINT

Whatever you cover with LUCITE wet stays covered when it dries . . . gets the job done right the first time. LUCITE is easy to use. Never needs stirring, doesn't drip like other leading paints. Goes on fast, dries even faster. Exciting range of colors that let you paint what you think.

$5.79
 Gallon

DU PONT LUCITE HOUSE PAINT

When you paint with LUCITE you give your house the best protection you can buy. LUCITE dries to a tough, flexible, protective sheet. It stretches and shrinks when your house does. Lets moisture out, won't let weather in. Shown to last longer than other leading house paints in a nationwide test on hundreds of homes. Built in primer, dries in a hour, soap and water clean-up.
